Lawsuit To Stop Racist Placement In Schools

BIASED I.Q. TESTS LABEL BLACK CHILDREN MENTALLY RETARDED

A group of Black parents in San Francisco has filed suit against the State Department of Education for using racially- and culturally-biased I.Q. tests to place Black children in classes for the mentally retarded.

(San Francisco, Calif.) - A major class action lawsuit challenging the use of culturally and racially-biased I.Q. tests to place Black elementary students in classes for the mentally retarded is finally going to trial on October 11.

The six-year-old lawsuit, Larry P. vs. Riles, will test in federal court Black parents' long-standing contention that standard I.Q. tests are biased against Blacks, and that they systematically underestimate the learning ability of Black school children.

As a result, thousands of Black children both in California and throughout the country have been subjected to a second-rate education and are forever saddled with the stigma of mental retardation.

Larry P. vs. Riles seeks relief for all Black elementary school children in California who have been wrongfully placed in classes for the so-called "educable mentally retarded" (EMR) because of individual intelligence tests.

The plaintiffs - Black children and their parents - are being represented in court by the NAACP and Public Advocates, Inc. The case will be conducted in the courtroom of federal District Court Judge Robert Peckham on the 19th floor of the Federal Building, 450 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, beginning at 10:00 a.m. on Tuesday, October 11.

Specifically, the plaintiffs in Larry P. vs. Riles assert that I.Q. tests, such as the WISC-R and the Stanford-Binet, improperly evaluate Blacks

GUNS vs. BUTTER

"Guns vs. Butter" has long been a thorny contradiction for America's legislators. All too often, as history has recorded, "guns" won out, as self-righteous U.S. businessmen whistled "Yankee Doodle Dandy" while raining a holocaust of terror and destruction upon the world's people. If "butter" was too expensive on the domestic scene, well, you were forced to eat your dreams. Besides, "butter" is fattening the commercials intense, and droppings are cheap... if you are Black or poor.

And once they decided on a national policy of "Kill," the killing became easier, more sophisticated, more "anti-ballistic," more "anti-anti," and more expensive too.

Just think, one day we can tell our grandchildren that way back in 1977, only $43 million was allocated by Congress to develop the ultra-insane neutron bomb, capitalism's ultimate weapon, cruelly slaughtering human beings while leaving property undamaged. That same year, only 3.27 billion was allocated for additional research into weapons that will leave the ashes of the once-living dangerously radioactive for only 24,000 years.

During his disastrous 1972 Presidential campaign, Senator George McGovern proposed a "peace priorities" plan which would have reduced superfluous military spending by $6 billion per year, or down to $55 billion by 1976, "Guns versus Butter." Well, in 1976, the actual military budget was $96.2 billion.

To its credit, and uncommon collective good sense, the Oakland City Council last week endorsed a resolution calling for a "Reordering of our National Priorities."

With more "guns" on the horizon, with a New Right, and a new scent of "kill" — Zimbabwean "communist" guerrillas, New York City "hosters," "criminal" prison inmates — in the air, resolutions such as this, and the proposed Transfer Resolution to reduce military spending in order to meet human needs, deserve a groundswell of support.

If not, the most popular tune in town won't be "When Johnny Comes Marchin' Home," but "Home Is Where The Hatred Is."

"Come here and iron my sheet, Maude. The good ol' days are here again!"

Letters to the Editor

SEEK JUSTICE FOR CONNECTICUT PRISONER

Dear Editor:

On Saturday, July 8, 1977, between 12:15 to 12:45 p.m. up to Sunday at 1:00 a.m., on July 10, 1977, prisoner Dennis Leary was brutally beaten by correctional officers. This happened on the 12:00 — 3:00 shift in the old building at 1106 North Avenue. He was pushed and kicked by the sergeant and guards (three all together) while he was in an administrative segregation unit.

There were a number of eyewitnesses to the brutal beating on this prisoner. Dennis Leary has a great deal of problems, mostly mental. Leary is on a drug called lithium which is a stabilizing drug used mainly in the treatment of manic-depressives. Leary lost his house and on top of that received a letter and visit of a "Dear John" from his wife. This even made his problems worse. The administration here did not try to help this prisoner at all.

On Sunday morning at 1:00 a.m. Dennis Leary was taken out of administrative segregation to the hole and still was being brutally beaten. He was kicked in the face and body several times.

I would like you to print this outrageous case in the newspaper or radio station you might have. He was wrong with him — which is totally a lie because I had a personal talk with him about his problems on a one to one personal level. Plus he spoke recently at the A. A. meeting in front of outside guests here in the jail. He also spoke with the A. A. counselor, Jack Connors, here at this correctional center. He does have a lot of problems and he needs help. He is

COMMENT

Congressional Black Caucus Report To The People

By Parren Mitchell

In the following commentary, Representative Parren Mitchell, chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus, provides a report to the community on his assessment of the status of Black America.

One of the more frightening aspects of cancer is that far too often the victim is unaware of the disease and hence does not seek medical help until the illness has reached the crisis state.

Black Americans are the victims of a two-pronged cancer that is growing at our vitals, but too many of us are unaware of, or unwilling to admit to, the condition.

One prong of the cancer is the chronic, systematic, structural unemployment that devastates our communities, and against which no significant federal government action has been advanced.

The Black unemployment rate is staggeringly high and causes crime, juvenile delinquency, drug/alcohol abuse, and other socio-psychological pathologies.

Perhaps the most damaging feature of forced unemployment on Blacks is the loss of a sense of personhood. Such a sense of loss prevents one from fulfilling positive roles, such as father, mother, community worker, etc., in the Black community.

In turn, a significant absence of positive role models adversely affects the lifestyles and aspirations of Black youth.

So it is that forced unemployment impacts negatively on the life of another generation of Black Americans, who have not yet reached age 26.

The only meaningful answer to forced unemployment is a comprehensive full employment program — one that guarantees work, in either the private or the public sector, to all who want to work. Timid, cautious, piecemeal approaches to Black unemployment simply will not solve anything.

The second prong of the cancer

DEMAND FOR GOVERNMENT FILES CONTINUES

REVEAL PACIFIC TELEPHONE INSTALLED SECRET TAP FROM HUEY'S PHONE TO F.B.I.

(Oakland, Calif.) - Despite the shocking revelation that the Pacific Telephone Company secretly installed a direct line from Black Panther Party President Huey P. Newton's telephone leading directly to FBI regional headquarters in San Francisco, an attorney for five federal government agencies argued in court here last week that defense subpoenas for other documents be quashed.

Representing the U.S. Attorney's office, the Organized Crime Strike Force of the U.S. Attorney's office, the FBI, the CIA and the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF) Division of the U.S. Treasury Department, attorney John Bard provided the most telling performance to date of the federal government's posture in the frame-up case against the suspected BPP leader - that is, to continue the cover-up.

The Tuesday, October 4, hearing was a follow-up to Oakland-Piedmont Municipal Judge Courtland Arne's order that the federal agencies had until September 29 to respond or comply with five identical subpoenas served against them earlier last month by Huey's defense team, headed by attorney Sheldon Otis.

As attorney David McNeil Morris, Otis' assistant, commented after the hearing, the government's refusal to act in good faith and to hand over the requested documents is absurdly untenable in light of the fact that a sixth subpoena, one to Pacific Telephone, resulted in such a telling disclosure.

Although the document has yet to be presented in court, it appears that the direct line tap on Huey's phone was placed, at the request of the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, around the same time discredited U.S. Attorney General John Mitchell approved an illegal break-in and "microphone surveillance" of Huey's apartment.]

Taking his line from Alameda County prosecutor Tom Orloff - who had previously argued against disclosure of files from 17 county, state and federal law enforcement agencies - government attorney Bard argued in court that the subpoenas were "too broad," that they sought mountains of material practically from the cradle to the grave."

[Observers in court, commenting on Bard's shabby presentation, later pointed out that his reference to "the grave" was a significant slip, since, despite the government intent Huey P. Newton is far from being dead. "Huey's alive, well and organiza-

COMMUNITY QUESTIONS STATE OFFICIALS AT "TOWN MEETING"

Elaine Brown Blasts National Guard "Employment" Plan

(Oakland, Calif.) - A proposal by the administration of Governor Edmund G. Brown, Jr., to utilize a new National Guard base here to lure the city's predominantly Black unemployed population was denounced last week by Elaine Brown, vice president and chairperson of the Black Panther Party.

The unpopular proposal was discussed at a "town meeting" sponsored by the governor's office held on September 28 at East Oakland's Castleman High School and attended by some 40 state administrators as part of Brown's efforts to take state government to local communities in California. Nearly 1,000 people turned out for the event, the third such "town meeting" conducted by the Brown administration.

As explained by Major General Frank Schobor, commander of the state Military Department, the proposed federally-funded "storefront National Guard armory" would employ 200 to 500 youth and train them in civilian-related skills.

Elaine, who was instrumental in organizing the meeting, termed the proposal "disgusting." She told Oakland Tribune reporters:

"It's a shameful statement on the government and private business that we can't provide jobs except through the military. I just hope they won't try to turn our Oakland brothers and sisters against each other as they have in the past."

Criticism of the program was initially raised by Jerry Jackson, president of the Oakland Citizens Committee for Urban Renewal (OCCUR), during the question-and-answer period, when Oakland citizens had the opportunity to express their concerns to the various governor-appointed state officials on hand.

Jackson recalled the repressive role played by the California National Guard in Watts in the 1965 Black rebellion there, in People's Park in San Francisco and that of the Ohio National Guard at Kent State in 1970.

"It's difficult to imagine our youth relating to any military operation," Jackson said.

The often heated meeting was attended by locally elected and

Oakland Endorses "Reordering National Priorities"

(Oakland, Calif.) — On Tuesday, October 4, the Oakland City Council formally adopted a progressive resolution to "Reorder National Priorities," specifically calling upon the Carter administration and the Congress "to address the imbalance between domestic expenditures and expenditures for the Pentagon."

Strongly supported, in speeches before the Council, by a list of community leaders and civic representatives, including Black Panther Party chairperson ELAINE BROWN and Oakland Mayor FRANK WHARTON, the resolution, already adopted by the National Mayor's Conference, passed by a 7 to 1 vote, with only Councilman GEORGE VUKASIN voting against the measure.

See next week's issue of THE BLACK PANTHER for the full story on the City Council's vote and the "Reordered Priorities" plan.

BIRMINGHAM INDICTMENT

Avowed Racist Surrenders In 1958 Black Church Bombing

(Marietta, Ga.) - Avowed racist J.D. Stoner surrendered here last week on charges that he participated in the bombing of a Black Birmingham church in 1958.

He immediately said he would fight extradition back to Alabama and was released on $10,000 bail.

Stoner's indictment was one of three handed down by a special grand jury investigating at least 50 acts of terrorism against Blacks in the Birmingham area in the 1950's and '60's.

A 75-year-old White bigot, Richard Chambliss, was previously arrested for the 1963 Birmingham church bombing which took the lives of four young Black girls. The third indictment is believed to have been lodged against a Thomas Blanton, Jr., who is said to have taken part with Chambliss in the September 15, 1963, bombing of Birmingham's 16th Street Baptist Church, killing the four young girls and wounding at least 20 others.

Stoner's indictment (actually there were two) accuses him of "exploding dynamite" in, under or dangerously near an "inhabited dwelling."

The dwelling in this case was the Bethel Baptist Church in Birmingham, pastored at that time by the Rev. Fred Shuttlesworth, a close associate of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., and a leading civil rights activist in the city.

Stoner, 52 years-old and a lawyer, has often represented the Ku Klux Klan in court. He heads the National State's Rights Party, an ultra-conservative, right-wing

COMMUNITY CRIES "WHITEWASH" IN LAKESIDE PARK INCIDENT

OAKLAND COPS "CLEARED" OF BRUTALITY CHARGES-PROTEST GOES ON

(Oakland, Calif.) - In a blatant whitewash, two Oakland police officers - one White and one Black - last week were cleared of any wrongdoing in an August 28 incident at Lakeside Park during which the White officer unjustly drew his gun on the predominantly Black crowd who witnessed the brutalization of two Black men.

As several Black people who attended a special hearing conducted last week by the Public Safety Committee of the Oakland City Council listened in disbelief, police chief George Hart said in "investigation" by the Internal Affairs Division of the Oakland Police Department (OPD) found that the two officers followed established police procedures.

The two policemen, an Officer Ridgeway and an Officer N. Smith, were exonerated despite the testimony of numerous eyewitnesses who saw Ridgeway, the Black officer, unnecessarily harass a Black man he arrested for having no identification and beat and arrest the brother of the first man who protested the treatment of his brother. (See THE BLACK PANTHER, September 17, 1977.)

Repenting his call for a citizen's police review board, made at the City Council meeting on September 13, Black attorney Leon Rountree, Jr., also an eyewitness to what he termed a "near riot" brought on by the policemen in Lakeside Park, said:

"The crux of the problem is not so much what happened in Lakeside Park. Black people in Oakland have the feeling that they should be treated as human beings. Blacks who live in Oakland have trouble getting along with the police. . .

"It is too much conflict for the police to police themselves. We need a police review board."

Questioned by Public Safety Committee members, Carter Gilmore - who said he did not accept the findings of the OPD's investigation - Mary Moore and George Vukasin, Hart maintained that the White officer, Smith, who told the Black people in the Park to "get back, you Black motherfuckers," was justified in drawing his gun because he believed that the crowd was about to attack

BLACK MOTHER IN CHICAGO

"My Children Are Just As Good As Theirs"

"My children are just as good as theirs. And I want them to have the best."

(Chicago, Ill.) - Such is Ms. Marlene Buckner's determination to provide her children with a quality education.

Ms. Buckner, 25, is the mother of two daughters, Michelle, 6, and Toyia, 9, both of whom participate in Chicago's voluntary transfer plan.

"Overcrowding" was the main reason Ms. Buckner wanted her children to be transferred from predominantly Black Barton Elementary School to the previously nearly all-White Stevenson Elementary School.

"Toyia's a bright student," she said. "A fifth-grader, she's a year ahead of her age. But at Barton she was able to skip three days a week of school and still be ahead."

Michelle, a first-grader, has different needs, Buckner told me. "She is a quieter child who knows the work but won't volunteer. She's the type of child you have to pull the answer out of."

With seventy-three kids in Toyia's classroom last year, Buckner said, "there was no competition. She was getting bored."

"When they came out with the transfer, Toyia asked for it, because she's the type of child that needs a challenge."

And in Michelle's case, her teacher told Ms. Buckner that "the classroom is so crowded, I can just ask the kids who know to put their hands up and I'll test them. But Michelle wouldn't volunteer anything."

"You have to ask her," Buckner said.

by unduly emphasizing verbal skills and by failing to take into account the cultural background of Black school children.

The plaintiffs agree with the conclusion of sociologist Jane Mercer that "present psychological assessment practices in public schools violate basic rights of children:

"(a) their right to be evaluated within a culturally appropriate cognitive framework; (b) their right to be assessed as a multi-dimensional human being; (c) their right to be fully educated; (d) their right to be free of stigmatizing labels; and (e) their right to ethnic identity and respect."

Already the lawsuit has revealed a dramatic racial imbalance in EMR classes in California, resulting in a preliminary injunction barring the use of I.Q. tests in EMR placement.

ELEMENTARY STUDENTS

When Larry P. vs. Riles was first filed in 1971, 66 per cent of the elementary students in EMR classes in San Francisco were Black, while Black students comprised only 28.5 per cent of the San Francisco school population.

Statewide, the imbalance was even greater. Although Black students were only 9.1 per cent of the school children in California, more than 27 per cent of the children in programs for the mentally retarded were Black.

In 1974, Black children comprised 69.5 per cent of the students in San Francisco EMR classes, but only 30 per cent of the city's school population. Statewide, 26 per cent of EMR classes were composed of Black children, while Blacks were only nine per cent of the total state school population.

Presently, 5,700 Black school children are illegally placed in EMR classes in California.

During the long course of the litigation, the state has done little to explain the racial imbalance in EMR classes.

At one point, state education officials suggested that since Black people tend to be poor, and poor people tend to suffer from inadequate nutrition, it was possible that the brain development of many Black children has been retarded by their mother's poor diet during pregnancy.

However, the main undercurrent of the state's position has been the racist proposition that Blacks are genetically inferior to Whites.

Indeed, in papers filed with the court in August, 1977, the state defendants suggested that the Black children are systematically denied their educational rights due to biased I.Q. tests racial imbalance in EMR placement is caused by differences in the inherited intelligence of the races.

In the upcoming trial, the plaintiffs not only intend to prove that the marked racial imbalance of EMR classes is the result of culturally-biased I.Q. tests, but also that this bias is not accidental — that it is built into American I.Q. tests from their original make-up.

"My Children Are Just As Good As Theirs"

ner pointed out, "and with forty or fifty kids in the classroom, you really can't blame the teacher for not going to each child individually and testing them the way it's supposed to be."

Sixteen-year-old MELAINE TURNER died from a sickle cell anemia crisis triggered by fears of a Chicago racist mob.

At Stevenson, things are better. The smallest classroom holds twenty-seven and the largest thirty-one.

Troyia, Michelle, and the other Black transfer students from Barton love their new school, Buckner said. "I asked one girl what she likes about it, and she simply answered, 'I'm learning.'"

"That's important. They're learning, and they see it. My daughter never had social studies at Barton."

"The little boy across the street never had his own book. They shared books. One week he would get to take it home and the next week another child would get to take it home."

Troyia and Michelle had to pass through a gauntlet of anti-Black protesters during their first week in school. Now police have ordered desegregation fans across the street, but they are still picketing every morning as the transfer students get off the bus.

What did Ms. Buckner think about having her kids face those bigots?

"Troyia wanted to learn. That's the only thing I really dealt with, the educational factor," she told me. "She's a bright child, and I'm not going to let anything hold her back."

"At Barton she was regressing instead of progressing, and I couldn't have that. I couldn't afford private school and I had no other alternative."

Ms. Buckner herself has been harassed into Stevenson twice to attend PEA meetings (the school is located in an area where Black motorists have been the victims of frequent racist violence). She knows firsthand the kind of bigots who picket outside the school.

"They are not dealing with education or Black children at all," she said.

"SUICIDE" CLAIMEDBuffalo Police

Man In Jail

(Buffalo, N.Y.) - Residents of Buffalo's predominantly Black, Puerto Rican and poor White First Ward are incensed over the recent police murder of a young Latino man, Tony Vives, following his arrest on minor charges of "creating a disturbance" and "resisting arrest."

Police claim that Vives hanged himself in his cell while confined at Buffalo's infamous Precinct 7. However, First Ward residents suspect that Vives was murdered after he had been brutally beaten by Buffalo cops.

News of the killing sparked two nights of militant protests. Angry residents took to the streets, throwing debris at cops, tossing firebombs at the police station, and spray painting Vives' name, "No. Seven are murderers," and "Pay back" all over the area.

Dozens of area residents were wearing black arm bands for several days as a sign of resistance to the brutality of the cops.

Precinct 7 has a long and notorious record of harassing this community. Everyone living here interviewed by Workers World recently spoke about cops who "will stop and push you around for no reason."

Vives was arrested by Officer Terry Adams on September 8 while relaxing with some friends on the front steps of a house at Fulton and Red Jacket Streets. Adams chased Vives into the house, and threatened, "I'll blow your brains out right now."

Officer Adams had previously been heard to tell Vives on several occasions, "I'm gonna get you," according to many of his friends. □

TRIAL FOR MURDER OF CHICANO

(Houston, Tex.) - Two Houston police officers are presently on trial here on murder charges for brutally beating 23-year-old Jose Campos Torres and throwing him into a river last May, causing him to drown.

Murder charges have been brought against two of the six policemen involved in the vicious killing, Officers Steven Orlando and Terry Denson.

Another officer was charged with a misdemeanor, two were granted immunity from prosecution and the sixth has agreed to testify against the two indicted officers.

Officer Carless Elliot testified that he and the others arrested Campos on a public disturbance charge and took him to a secluded area overlooking the Buffalo Bayou, a stream running through Houston.

There says Elliot, police "made a semicircle" around Campos, who was handcuffed, and "cursed and beat him."

Elliot testified that they then drove Campos to the city jail but the jail supervisor refused to admit him since he was so badly beaten. The officers were supposed to take Campos to the hospital but they instead took him back to the bayou and beat him again.

Benavidez was stopped by Cogley as an alleged robbery suspect. While Cogley was searching Benavidez, with his shotgun jammed into the back of his neck, the weapon discharged, literally blowing the young Chicano's brains out of his head.

The Oakland Police Department claimed that the death was "accidental" and that Cogley had followed "routine procedure." However, the Chicano community and other progressive forces have consistently demanded that Cogley be prosecuted for the murder of Barlow Benavidez.

AIM TO AID LOW AND MIDDLE INCOME FAMILIES

OAKLAND BETTER HOUSING GROUP REVITALIZES DECAYING HOMES

(Oakland, Calif.) - Throughout Black and minority communities in this country, vacant and abandoned dilapidated housing stands as a stark reminder of the neglect and decay faced by the working poor. The problem is everywhere.

But here in Oakland, a nonprofit, community-based group is trying to change all that. It's name is Oakland Better Housing, Inc. (OBHI), and it's game is housing rehabilitation/renovation - changing the eerie sounds of broken glass and creakingwood to the sound of children laughing.

Just one year after its formation through a merger of two nonprofit corporations operating similar programs - the Oak Center Better Housing Corporation (OCBHC) and Oakland Rehab, Inc. (ORI) - Oakland Better Housing, Inc. has emerged as a strong asset in achieving decent housing for all local residents.

GOALS

OBHI's goals are straightforward:

(1) providing decent housing to low and moderate income families;

(2) improving minority involvement in construction trades;

(3) saving the existing housing stock;

(4) preserving the unique character of Oakland's neighborhoods; and

(5) assisting in the stabilization of communities.

Under OBHI's program, vacant and abandoned houses are acquired, rehabilitated and resold to needy families. The group is involved in virtually every phase of the process, including negotiating for purchase of the properties - hiring construction workers; purchasing materials, arranging financing and locating families to purchase the properties.

Sale prices for OBHI homes tend to range between $20- to $35,000. By qualifying for Federal Housing Administration loans under its 235 (b) program, downpayments range from as low as three per cent to 20 per cent. Veteran Administration loans with no downpayment for those eligible and conventional loans are also investigated.

Monthly payments are determined by the sale price of the property, the interest rate, property taxes, insurance and the amount of downpayment.

A key stipulation is that buyers must live on the premises.

Working under a $500,000

Oakland Better Housing, Inc., is striving to upgrade living conditions in the Black community.

revolving loan fund from the Oakland Office of Community Development, OBHI acquires vacant properties through a variety of sources.

Special emphasis is given to acquiring properties located in areas where rehabilitation and other neighborhood improvements are already in progress, or at those locations identified as particular problems by local residents.

The renovation of the homes includes painting the outside and inside, installing new plumbing and electrical wiring, roofing, new or reconditioned heating, new or refinished flooring, foundation work, landscaping, and room remodeling or additions.

Most of this work is done by Oakland residents of all levels of skills who receive on-the-job training.

All properties must get certificates of occupancy from the city of Oakland and termite clearance.

The BBAPC feels that any "thorough" investigation of Benavidez's murder should include the following points:

1.) An examination of the circumstances regarding the incident of June 11, 1976, and the credibility of conflicting evidence;

2.) Evidence related to Cogley's background, training, attitudes and fitness as a police officer, as they relate to the events of June 11, 1976;

3.) The biased response of local authorities, the continuing violation of civil rights and the necessity for federal intervention;

4.) Policies, patterns and practices of the Oakland Police Department as they relate to this case.

Exxon Bribes

(Washington, D.C.) - Exxon Corporation consented last week to federal charges of paying more than $65.5 million in bribes and illegal political contributions in Italy and 15 other countries and keeping a Japanese parliamentarian on its payroll. Exxon, the world's largest corporation, agreed to an injunction filed by the Securities and Exchange Commission in U.S. District Court which forbids the payments to continue.

Compton Cop Cleared

(Los Angeles, Calif.) - The Los Angeles County District Attorney's office has refused thus far to file charges against a White, off-duty Compton policeman who was arrested recently in the fatal shooting of a Black security guard. Officer Jim Perry was hooked on suspicion of murder after R.E. Anderson was shot to death in his home.

Slavery In N.Y.

(New York, N.Y.) - Two White crew leaders were recently arrested and charged following an investigation which exposed farm workers being held in slavery in upstate New York. "No one we talked to got any money," said Albert Bacharach, Jr., a member of a legal team that exposed the conditions on a farm owned by Bradley Fisher, a White man. "They all were in debt to the crew leader...if they try to leave, they send people to bring them back," Bacharach said.

Wilmington 10 Honored

(Washington, D.C.) - The Congressional Black Caucus (CBC) last week paid tribute to the Wilmington 10 with an award acknowledging their "historic contribution...to the cause of justice and human rights for Blacks everywhere." The CBC conveyed the George W. Collins Award for Community Service to the incarcerated civil rights activists at their annual fundraising banquet. President Carter, who attended the CBC affair, offered no comment.

ANTI-BLACK, ANTI-POOR FORCES ORGANIZING

"RADICAL RIGHT" ON THE RISE

(Washington, D.C.) - In a private dining room of the Capitol Hill Club, a Republican oasis in a Democratic preserve, a group of 30 staunch conservatives of both parties met in September to celebrate a crucial victory for which they claimed substantial credit.

Paul Weyrich, director of the Committee for the Survival of a Free Congress, awarded gleaming brass plaques to Republican Senator Paul Laxalt of Nevada and Richard Viguerie, the movement's genius of the direct-mail campaign. Their combined efforts, exulted Weyrich, had defeated Jimmy Carter's bills for election-day registration and the public financing of senatorial elections, which would have bolstered the Democratic vote.

The plaques were inscribed with the tribute: FOR LEADERSHIP IN PRESERVING FREE ELECTIONS.

Those bronze plaques will doubtless be followed by many more accolades, for the conservatives are seeing a new day dawning.

GROWING MAJORITY

All surveys show that a growing majority of the American people consider themselves to be conservative. There clearly is continuing discontent with big government and big spending.

Beyond these basic concerns, a host of new emotional issues are swelling conservative ranks and stirring their rhetoric. The Panama Canal Treaty may be the most prominent concern of the moment, but the movement is thriving on such life-style issues as abortion, pornography, gay rights, "looting" and racism.

They claim to be the New Right, but several of the themes — and faces — are old.

In 1972, Richard Nixon buried his New Left opponent with the help of some of the same issues that are current today. Many of the leaders are familiar. Ronald Reagan, 67. Barry Goldwater, 66. North Carolina Senator Jesse Helms, 55.

And there is a different breed of conservative coming on the scene now.

These include Laxalt, 45, and Viguerie, 41, and a group of aggressive Republicans: Utah Senator Orrin Hatch, 40; Illinois Congressman Phil Crane, 46; and California state Senator Bill Richardson, 49.

Like the liberals, the new New Right leaders diatribe past conservatives as "reactionaries."

Scotts Lyn Nofziger, a long-time Reagan aide: "The old right were talkers and pamphleteers. They would just as soon go down in flames as win. But the New Right has moved toward a more pragmatic goal of accomplishing things."

Their chief tool, in fact, is not new at all: the U.S. Postal Service. Through direct-mail bombardment the right alerts its friends to a particular cause and adds to its converts.

In this letter-box war for American minds, the top general is Viguerie, who is considered by friend and foe alike the "god-father" of the New Right.

At his office in Falls Church, Virginia, some 200 people crank out 100 million letters a year (200 million in an election year) to five million conservatives whose names are on computer tapes.

Says Viguerie: "The Left controls all communications except one: direct mail."

Often outmaneuvered by the left during the 1960's, the right has now copied the enemy's tactics. Like COPE, the political arm of the AFI-CIO, the New Right has plunged into the grass roots, ringing doorbells, phoning and passing out leaflets. Like the student left, the resurgent right has taken to the streets to demonstrate.

And they can pack a meeting. Feminists everywhere were in an uproar last summer when they found that their state caucuses for the International Women's Year were infiltrated and sometimes taken over by conservatives deciding ERA and opposing abortion. (L)

Midwest conservatives take to the streets to oppose the Equal Rights Amendment. White bigots (above) give Nier salute.

Berkeley Police Called 'Racist' By Review Commission

(Berkeley, Calif.) - Berkeley's Police Review Commission, by a 4-to-1 vote, has concluded that Berkeley police personnel practices are racist following hearings on the case of Asian police officer Bob Jung, who charged that he had been unjustly dealt with in disciplinary matters.

In a series of hearings last week, Jung cited 11 instances in which he was dealt with more harshly in disciplinary matters than a White officer would have been in a similar situation. Jung's charges were supported by four other minority officers in the Berkeley Police Department.

Commissioner Walter Edwards remarked, "I think there is racism in Berkeley, and I think there is racism in the Berkeley Police Department."

Meanwhile, in San Francisco, the predominantly Black Officers for Justice continue to make progress in their four-year-old bias suit against the San Francisco Police Department.

When the suit was filed in 1973, the San Francisco city attorney's office agreed to provide the lawyers for the Officers for Justice with regular reports on the number of minority and female officers. U.S. District Judge Robert Peckham stated last week that the city attorney's office had been so uncooperative that he would name an independent auditor to pursue the task.

This will be done at the city's expense, said Peckham, and other "sanctions" will be determined later.

K.K.K. Infiltrates Louisville Police

(Louisville, Ky.) - While national attention has focused on Louisville, Kentucky, as the scene of often violent protests against school busing, local Blacks and others have accused the police of condoning, if not instigating, much of the violence.

Now FBI documents obtained under the Freedom of Information Act have confirmed that the Louisville Police Department has become a hotbed of Ku Klux Klan activity.

According to the documents, the United Klans of America opened a new Klavern (cell) in the Louisville area early in 1976. Members in this particular Klavern had more than White sheets and racist ideology in common. FBI information indicates that the Klan unit enlisted "exclusively persons employed with local law enforcement."

Louisville KKK members, many of whom are police, were responsible for burning school bus last year in anti-busing campaign.

"Unit reportedly was to be chartered by William Chaney, Grand Dragon, ERA Indiana

OVER 1,000 OPERATIVES USED

F.B.I. ADMITS PAYING $1.7 MILLION TO S.W.P. INFORMERS

(Oakland, Calif.) - Recently released information reveals that the FBI spent $1,693,000 in cash to pay a portion of the over 1,300 people who were informers against the Socialist Workers Party (SWP) and the Young Socialist Alliance (YSA) between 1960 and 1976.

Last month the FBI revealed its payoffs to informers in answer to questions posed by the SWP and the YSA in their $40 million lawsuit against the federal police agency. This information covers only 309 informers who were used by the FBI between 1960 and 1976.

Of the 309, only eight were not paid. One operative, reports the Militant, collected $46,383.15 during a seven-year period, taking in $11,000 in one year.

All of the 309 informers were agents-provocateur — members of the SWP and YSA between 1960 and 1976. The remaining 1,000 are suspected to be landlords, bank officials or other people who attended public meetings of the two affiliated political groups. The FBI has released no information on these non-member informers.

The SWP and the YSA had demanded this information "as part of their legal offensive against the government's use of political informers," the Militant reports.

As part of its scheme to dismantle the left in the U.S., the FBI used over 1,300 operatives to infiltrate and inform on the Socialist Workers Party.

As a first step toward getting the files of all 1,300 informers, the SWP and YSA have demanded a cross-section of the informer network.

Federal Judge Thomas Griesa has ordered the FBI to show the eighteen files to the SWP attorneys, but the government has appealed this ruling.

In its attempts to avoid turning over the files, the FBI has resorted to maneuvers ranging from massive legal bribes to publicity stunts.

About a year ago, for example, the Justice Department declared its "investigation" of the SWP and the YSA over. The FBI then publicly ordered its informers out of the two socialist organizations.

Syd Stapleton, national secretary of the Political Rights Defense Fund (an organizing arm for the SWP/YSA lawsuit), comments, "At the very least, American citizens have a right to see the product of this outrageous expenditure and to examine the FBI's files for themselves. That will be a major step toward stopping this kind of attack on democratic rights." □

BEHIND THE WALLS

Lethal Injections in Texas

(Huntsville, Texas) - With America's first legal execution by lethal injection scheduled to occur in Texas later this month, knowledgeable opponents of the death penalty fear that growing acceptance of the new "civilized" killing method could plunge the country back into capital punishment on its largest scale in decades.

Bills replacing electrocution with drugs were introduced last spring in several states. Governor David Boren of Oklahoma signed the first such measure into law on May 10, and a similar law was enacted the next day in neighboring Texas. The lethal injection method may well take hold in many more states this year.

Texas has 59 convicted murderers at the FBis Unit near Huntsville, ranking it behind Florida (87), Ohio (71) and Georgia (60) in death-row populations. Its convict-built electric chair has killed 261 men since it was first plugged in 63 years ago.

Texas state Representative Ben Grant and state Senator Bill Bracklin sponsored the latest death measure. Grant calls the electric chair a "medieval torture chamber." He ascribes his interest in lethal injection to some testimony he once heard on the liquidation of unwanted pets.

Milwaukee Jail Beatings

(Milwaukee, Wisc.) - Four Black inmates and one former inmate who is Black recently charged sheriff's personnel at the Milwaukee County Jail with unprovoked beatings, and for being chained for up to two weeks in solitary confinement and forced to lie in their bodily wastes. The inmates, Frank Lowe, James Sykes, Gregory Allen and Roy Foster, and Andrew Martin, now released, made the charges in three separate letters to the Milwaukee Courier. Lowe said he was beaten by several deputies, put in "belly chains," and kept in solitary for two weeks where he had to sleep on the concrete floor. "Inmates are sometimes forced to remain locked up like that for five or 12 days at a time," Sykes revealed.

"A GUN SEPARATES YOU FROM THE PEOPLE"

Unarmed Black Sheriff Respected By Alabama Community

(Eutaw, Ala.) - Greene County's Black sheriff, Thomas Gilmore, through establishing close and meaningful ties in his community, is able to patrol this predominantly Black rural community without using a gun.

Gilmore, respected by Blacks and Whites alike as a peacemaker and long-time civil rights activist, wears no gun, badge or uniform. He is called the "Reverend Sheriff" since he preaches at two Baptist churches on alternate Sundays.

Gilmore has a strong belief in law enforcement without a gun, explaining, "Fighting fire with fire won't work. What I do is constantly make myself seen and heard — in homes, churches and schools."

"You have to let people know," says Gilmore, "who you are. A gun would separate me from society. It's the fear of the unknown that sometimes causes people to react violently."

THOMAS GILMORE, Greene County sheriff.

Gilmore was arrested twice, in 1963 and 1966, as a young civil rights activist demonstrating for quick implementation of the newly enacted Voting Rights Acts.

"I bet I'm the only sheriff," says Gilmore, "who once was locked up in his own jail."

Gilmore was first elected in 1970 when he defeated White incumbent Bill Lee (who once hit the Black sheriff with a cane during a sit-in protest) by 100 votes. His election paved the way for Black citizens to take over the county government in 1972 — the fruits of a massive voter registration campaign.

Greene County, with a population of 13,462, has all-Black commissioners and its probate judge is Black. Five of Gilmore's six deputies are Black, including the only woman deputy. □ Coal miners' clinic is totally empty due to cutoff of funds.

Widows Of 15 Coal Miners Killed In Explosion Lose Damage Suit

Health Care Crisis Adds To U.M.W. Woes

(Oven Fork, Ky.) - U.S. District Court Judge H. David Hermansdorfer recently dismissed a $50 million suit against Blue Diamond Coal Company filed by the widows of 15 coal miners who were killed in a mine explosion here last year after five days of court hearings.

Attorneys for the 15 widows said they will appeal.

The case dates back to March 9, 1976, when an explosion at the Scotia mine in Oven Fork, Kentucky, killed 15 miners. Two days later, eight miners and three federal inspectors met the same fate while inspecting the scene of the first blast.

Miners and most others blamed Blue Diamond's flouting of safety laws, which allowed methane gas to accumulate in the mine.

But Blue Diamond and other Kentucky industries had prepared for just such situations by pushing through legislation some years before exempting companies from damage suits if the companies paid into the state's workmen's compensation fund.

In 1960, however, Blue Diamond had pulled a fast one that left the company at least dangling on a hook as far as the 15 widows are concerned. In order to get in on some tax breaks, but probably in the main to keep the United Mine Workers of America (UMW) out of the Scotia mine, Blue Diamond set up a separate Scotia Coal Company to run the mine.

Thereafter, the widows' suit charges, Blue Diamond acted as a

REFUSE TO END SUPPORT OF REPRESSIVE REGIMES

PROGRESSIVE SHAREHOLDER RESOLUTIONS REJECTED BY DEL MONTE

(San Francisco, Calif.) - Conservative Del Monte Corporation shareholders affirmed their support of South African apartheid and martial law in the Philippines last week by defeating three resolutions which dealt with the huge food processing company's overseas corporate policy of supporting reactionary regimes.

The Northern California Interfaith Committee on Corporate Responsibility (NC-ICCR), a coalition of 60 Protestant and Roman Catholic church-related institutional and individual investors, were responsible for raising the resolutions. All three were overwhelmingly rejected.

The resolutions were:

1) That Del Monte draft a public report on its involvement in South Africa, including corporate assets and profits, employee positions and salaries, and taxes paid to the South African government since 1965;

2) That a board be appointed to investigate company wage practices, land acquisition practices and any involvement by the company with the Philippine government, the fascist, martial regime of Ferdinand Marcos;

3.) That a list of any "political bribes or other questionable payments" made by or on behalf of the corporation be made available.

Rosell (Prexy) Nesbitt of the American Committee on Africa told the gathering of 250 shareholders and corporation officers at the Fairmont Hotel here that "Del Monte, like the Carter administration, is on the cutting edge in this horrendous situation (South Africa's apartheid system)."

Nesbitt said South Africa "is becoming a high risk business investment" because of the violence caused by apartheid.

He charged that "the current $1.7 billion of U.S. direct investments in South Africa by some 400-odd U.S. companies supports and legitimizes apartheid — a system of slavery."

Rev. Bruno Hicks of the American Friends Service Committee and Walden Bello, a Filipino, challenged the company's land and labor policies in the Philippines, and asked for more information about them.

"Since Ferdinand Marcos declared martial law five years ago, the country has been a haven for foreign investors and a living hell for Filipinos," said Bello.

While the NC-ICCR's shareholder proposals were being discussed, several hundred demonstrators staged a protest outside the Fairmont demanding:

U.F.W. Setback In Major Union Election

(Delano, Calif.) - Using tactics of coercion and intimidation the owners of the huge Guimarra grape ranch thwarted an attempt by the United Farm Workers (UFW) Union to unionize workers in a labor election held this week.

The final count in the very important election was 673 votes for the UFW, 900 for no union. The Guimarra family achieved this victory by openly intimidating workers and threatening to fire and evict them from ranch-owned housing.

The UFW has filed over 90 charges of unfair labor practices against Guimarra with the state Agricultural Labor Relations Board (ALRB). One UFW member described the blatant coercion of workers "incredible." Over 1,000 had signed UFW union cards but many were afraid to vote.

During the election there was an attempt by Guimarra to have union sympathizers deported. Raids by the Immigration and Naturalization Services (INS), "La Migra," suddenly began last month at Guimarra ranches in the Delano-Bakersfield area.

The fact that no raids were made at other ranches clearly points to a conspiracy between the INS and the Guimarra family — the same growers who were responsible for financing the bloody field war of the 1975 strike here that left two UFW members dead, dozens badly injured and hundreds jailed.

Striker Juan de la Cruz died on Guimarra land during the strike, reports People's World, shot by a goon the Guimarra family is suspected of hiring.

In the September raid carried out by the INS, virtually every UFW supporter without documents on Guimarra's payroll was caught and carried to a deportation center. Included were most of the 150 Guimarra workers who led a march at the union convention in Fresno. At the same time Guimarra foremen were spreading the lie among remaining workers that the UFW Raelf called the INS.

Instantly, the UFW headquarters in La Paz, California, organized a massive mailgram campaign which flooded the Washington, D.C. office of INS Director Lionel Castillo with angry messages from around the country. The following day, INS agents in central California were ordered by Castillo to release all Guimarra farmworkers. □ is the deliberate, sustained, carefully planned attacks against affirmative action programs. Without these programs we Blacks could not have realized the limited gains made in the last 10 years.

REVERSE DISCRIMINATION

The "reverse discrimination syndrome," initially found only in the professional school educational arena, has now spread to the point that it is having disastrous effects on Black Americans.

The reverse discrimination syndrome retards employment opportunities in the public and private sectors. It limits educational opportunities below the professional school level.

I am appalled at the extent to which many of the White media have joined in the attacks on and Political Rights; Education; Welfare/Badness/Social Insurance; Economic Development/Aid to Minority Business; the Economy; and Foreign Policy.

As chairman, I view the formation and operation of Black Brain Trusts as the single most important development in the last six months.

The Black Brain Trusts embrace such areas as: (1) Administration of Justice; (2) Education; (3) Health; (4) Communications; (5) The Black Agent; (6) Minority Enterprise, Economic Development and Housing; (7) Foreign Policy; and (8) Voter Participation.

They convene quarterly and serve four major functions which are: creation and evaluation of national legislation; recommending and monitoring agency regulations; lobbying; and future planning.

All four functions operate from the Black perspective, of course. Each Brain Trust is composed of Black experts who are activists, researchers, paraprofessionals, professionals, communicators, etc.

These Brain Trusts create a Black, national communications network — a Black national constituency whose full political clout can be brought to bear on an issue in a short period of time. In the near future we expect to have 16 such Brain Trusts, each with a minimal membership of 600.

Give us that army of Black expertise, with its skills and resources, and it is inevitable that we Black Americans shall conquer our two present enemies, joblessness and loss of affirmative action. □

The protest was organized by the Southern Africa Solidarity Committee, the Bay Area Namibia Action Group, the Campuses United Against Apartheid, the People's Food System Organization and the People's Cultural Center.

The coalition specifically charged Del Monte with profiteering in Namibia and South Africa and having "land-grabbing" operations in not only the Philippines but throughout the Third World.

While all of the proposals were soundly defeated, it is certain that these issues will be brought up at next year's shareholder meeting. □

That is the situation. What is being done? Are there any encouraging developments? Much is being done, and there are positive developments.

In June I sent to Black leaders and Black organizations the chairman's six-month report on the Congressional Black Caucus. The report shows clearly that we are effectively engaged in attempting to kill the cancer. Caucus members serve on all the key committees of the U.S. House of Representatives, and therefore we are able to score successes as we advance our 19 priority issues.

group, among whose members was Fred Cowen, a neo-Nazi madman who murdered four Blacks in cold blood earlier this year in New Rochelle, New York, before taking his own life.

Appearing before state court Judge James L. Bullard, Stoner offered to identify — but only in Georgia courts — an FBI undercover agent and a Birmingham detective, who, he claimed, would kill him if he's sent back to Alabama to stand trial.

$25,000 OFFER

Stoner said the pair offered him $25,000 to have the late Dr. King killed in 1966 or 1967, adding that the FBI agent offered him $2,000 to burn Bethel Baptist Church in "an obvious trap."

The work of the grand jury in handing down the indictments was made possible when public pressure forced the FBI to release its file on the Birmingham bombings in 1975. For close to 10 years, the FBI refused to disclose the contents of its file to Alabama state authorities, claiming fear that the identities of its informants in the KKK would be disclosed.

Meanwhile, a former mayor of Birmingham, Art Hanes, has taken over Chambliss' case. Hanes said the extremist/segregationist "intends to plead not guilty."

At the time of the bombing, the 16th Street Baptist Church was used as a headquarters by Dr. King and as a staging ground for the massive civil rights demonstrations which rocked the city-White authorities in Birmingham in the early 1960's.

Cynthia Wesley, Carol Robertson and Addie Mae Collins, all 14 years old, and Denise McNair, 11, were all killed when a dynamite blast tore through the church just as the Sunday school hour was coming to a close. □

REVOLUTIONARY SUICIDE

Huey P. Newton

"Release"

In this portion of the chapter "Release" from Revolutionary Suicide Black Panther Party Founder and chief theorist Huey P. Newton continues to describe the aftermath of his release from prison on August 5, 1970, after close to three years of false imprisonment.

Before I saw my mother, I went to a friend's house, got out of my prison clothes, and went to a news conference at Charles Garry's office. The news conference was unusual. Because it included a lot of movement people I had come to like over the months in jail, it was anything but the kind of cool encounter I usually have with the regular news media.

A question would come at me, and when I started to answer I would suddenly realize that this was a person I wanted to rap with personally. This happened over and over again with people there that day. Some of the Establishment press came, but it was 90 per cent underground press. At this press conference I offered Black Panther troops to the National Liberation Front of the People's Republic of Vietnam.

NEWS CONFERENCE

When we left the news conference, I went to the hospital to see my mother. It was a joyous reunion. Later, when my father and I met, he was deeply moved, and wept. He told me he had not expected to live long enough to see me freed from prison.

During the first few days out of jail, I wondered when reality would come again — in relation to myself, to the world around me, to all that was happening to me. I had literally forgotten how to live outside.

I had to develop all over again my old reflex actions to avoid being startled or puzzled by certain phenomena. People who have never served time in prison do not realize that a large percentage of their behavior is a conditioned response involving no reasoning process. They instinctively react in the right way because they are used to the familiar patterns in their lives. Social stimuli and social forces do not baffle them.

Cut off from all this for a few years, life around me at first seemed jerky and out of synchronization. All the sounds, movements and colors coming on simultaneously — television, telephone, radio, people talking, cooking and going, doorbells and phones ringing — were dizzying at first. Ordinary life seemed hectic and chaotic, and quite overwhelming. I even had to figure out what to eat and what time I was going to bed. In prison, all this had been decided for me.

Walking through the streets was an indescribable experience, the closest I have ever felt to being truly free, with people walking by, recognizing me, and waving. I went everywhere, visiting people in the community, to the surprise of many who never expected to see me on the street, only on television or maybe in Hollywood after I was released.

But I was determined to get back among them. I walked in Oakland, Berkeley, Richmond and San Francisco. I went to Seventh Street, Sacramento Avenue, Potrero Hill, Hunter's Point, Richmond, North Richmond, West Oakland, Peralta Street, Cypress Street, East Oakland, and Parkchester Village. I visited several bars, where I had done a lot of recruiting. And everywhere I got the same reaction; people wondered why I had come back to them. I explained that neither news reporters nor television cameras had got me out of prison; the people had freed me, and I had come back to thank them and be with them.

At Father Earl Neil's church, St. Augustine's, I talked to members of his congregation. That, too, was a warm experience. Father Neil is a young Black Episcopal priest who has worked with the Black community and the Party since coming to Oakland. We consider him our chaplain. He was involved in civil rights in Mississippi in the early 1960's, and he knows all about brutality and violence. During my trial he came often to the courtroom to lend his support.

Although people received me warmly, I was at first a symbol. Our relationship had changed. There was now an element of hero worship that had not existed before I got busted. But I wanted our rapport to get back to where it was before I went to jail, that is a relationship based on face-to-face communication between people working together for survival.

I think their faith and trust in me was restored, although perhaps it will never be the same again. The earlier close family tie has been enlarged by an image of me created through publicity and the media. So much had been written, so much said, that I was distanced from them; there was a slight estrangement. It would be overcome.

All this time I was under immense pressure to give interviews, to fill speaking engagements, to appear on talk shows and television programs, but I accepted none of these for about six months. I even received a brochure from some Hollywood outfit.

It contained newspaper clippings about me and a letter saying, "You're star quality," or something like that, which would have been amusing had it not been such an overt capitalist attempt to co-opt the revolution. Too many so-called leaders of the movement have been made into celebrities and their revolutionary fervor destroyed by mass media. They become Hollywood objects and lose identification with the real issues. The task is to transform society; only the people can do that — not heroes, not celebrities, not stars.

A star's place is in Hollywood; the revolutionary's place is in the community with the people. A studio is a place where fiction is made, but the Black Panther Party is out to create nonfiction. We are making revolution.

CONGRESS PASSES N-BOMB FUNDS

Washington, D.C. - By a 297 to 109 vote, the U.S. House of Representatives last week voted to approve funds for research and development of the nightmarish neutron bomb, the nuclear weapon which kills people but leaves buildings intact.

The House vote, taken after two days of emotional debate, supported the Carter administration position and defeated an amendment authored by New York Representative Theodore Weiss barring funds for the N-bomb production. The N-bomb funds, estimated at around $43.4 million, came as part of a $2.67 billion legislative package for nuclear research programs of the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA), whose 1977-78 funding year began October 1.

President Carter had urged Congress to approve funds for continued development, but has delayed announcing his decision on whether to produce and deploy the "clean" nuclear weapon.

House opponents of the "enhanced radiation weapon" argued to no avail that the N-bomb warhead's precision — producing less blast, less heat, less fallout, but higher emission of steel-penetrating radioactive neutrons — invited use.

"Since the atomic bomb was dropped on Hiroshima, the use of nuclear weapons has been regarded as the last resort. The neutron bomb changes all that. It is ballyhooed as a weapon that can be used in a limited war. This kind of thinking drops the threshold point for nuclear weapons from a 'last resort' situation to a tactical, field situation," Weiss argued.

In an emotional statement, Bay Area Congressman Ron Dellums said he sat

The neutron bomb will kill anyone in a three-fourths of a mile radius — causing a slow and painful death — while leaving property unharmed. The tower of Hiroshima bright.

listening to the debate "with my heart palpating... If we go forward with this insanity, we make nuclear war thinkable, acceptable, possible and inevitable."

For Representative Elizabeth Holtzman, her voice rising: "The argument isn't whether this is better or worse than what we have, but why are we recommitting ourselves to a policy of nuclear holocaust."

Other opponents spoke grimly of the "inhumaneness" of death from neutron radiation, slow and painful.

According to Army documents revealed by the Washington Post this spring, a one kiloton N-bomb will yield 8,000 rads of deadly neutron radiation at the target site.

"Personnel will become incapacitated within five minutes of exposure and for physically demanding tasks will remain incapacitated until death...in one or two days."

At one-half of a mile away, the neutron radiation yield will drop to 3,000 rads. Persons will become incapacitated and remain so for 30 to 45 minutes. "Personnel will then recover but will be functionally impaired until death...in four to six days."

At three-fourths of a mile away, neutron radiation drops to 650 rads, with functional impairment within two hours. "Personnel may respond to medical treatment and survive the dose; however, the majority of exposed personnel will remain functionally impaired until death...in several weeks."

Proponents of the N-bomb argued that property damage would be minimized and that U.S. troops could move into the N-bomb area within hours, instead of months.

In a related move, the House Appropriations Committee refused to cut $463.4 million from the Pentagon's budget for the construction of six B-1 bombers. The 34 to 21 vote rejected President Carter's proposal to eliminate funds for the controversial plane.

Hayakawa Insults Blacks

(San Diego, Calif.) - In a racist speech given here last week at the state Republican convention, right-wing California Senator S.I. Hayakawa boldly claimed that there is a permanent class of Black people "who are dependent on somebody else for their welfare and livelihood."

In his speech Hayakawa charged, "Liberal Whites and, I am sorry to say, a majority of Black politicians, are destroying the Black people by creating a state in them of permanent dependency."

"A coalition of White opportunists and Black opportunists," said Hayakawa, is responsible for the perpetuation of a "permanent class of Blacks who are dependent on somebody else for their welfare and livelihood."

According to the arch-conservative California senator, other minority groups "didn't have special programs, but they started at the bottom of the ladder. But there isn't anything at the bottom of the ladder now — nothing except welfare — and that is what destroyed them [Black people]."

Hayakawa's insulting speech was well-received by an audience of 1,000 delegates, nearly all of whom were Whites. Ironically, Hayakawa was calling for greater participation in the Republican Party by what he called "the great Black middle class."

Meanwhile, in Washington, D.C., the Senate Finance Committee voted last week to let states force welfare recipients to work off their benefits at special jobs — paying below the federal minimum wage in many cases.

The provision, strongly opposed by welfare rights groups, was part of a package of welfare law changes sent to the Senate floor by an 8 to 5 vote of the Committee, chaired by arch-conservative Senator Russell B. Long of Louisiana.

The provision passed by the Finance Committee is reportedly a longstanding pet project of the group and applies only to those in the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program.

Under the plan, a state welfare agency could require adults receiving AFDC benefits to work off the payments at the locally prevailing wage for work such as clean-up, yard tasks or other unskilled labor, or at the state minimum wage, whichever is higher.

In many areas, both the "prevailing wage" and the state minimum are lower than the federal minimum wage.

Refusal to take the often degrading jobs would result in a cutoff or lowering of AFDC benefit payments.

S.W.A.P.O.'s NUJOMA OUTLINES STRUGGLE IN NAMIBIA

In the following exclusive interview by Guardian correspondent Sara Rodriguez in Angola, SWAPO President Sam Nujoma discusses the development of the Namibian struggle over the past decade.

Q: When the South-West Africa People's Organization (SWAPO) launched the armed struggle on August 26, 1966, the situation was very different from what it is now. Portugal still ruled Angola, imperialism still had a free hand in southern Africa. What have been the main phases in the struggle for national liberation?

NUJOMA: The formation of SWAPO in 1960 as a vanguard movement was dictated by the absolute need to accord the anticolonial struggle of our people a unified political expression and a clearly defined goal to achieve. Colonialism had been firmly entrenched in the entire subcontinent so the founders of SWAPO strove to create an alternative political force capable of withstanding all sorts of attacks by providing the masses, the working class and the peasantry in particular, with revolutionary political orientation, thereby preparing favorable conditions for the following phase.

In pursuit of this strategy, the first six years were largely devoted to the political mobilization process of the broadest sector of our oppressed people, whose solid unity of purpose constitutes today a formidable wall of resistance against colonialism and racism in our country. Since 1966 the Namibian people have waged a bitter and protracted armed struggle to end the armed occupation of our country by racist South Africa and achieve genuine national independence. Armed struggle is an advanced form of political battle, and it is being spearheaded by the People's Liberation Army of Namibia (PLAN) with

TALKS WITH WESTERN NATIONS BREAK DOWN

South Africa Refuses To Withdraw Troops From Namibia

(Pretoria, South Africa) - High-level talks on the future of Namibia (South West Africa) broke down here recently as the South African government and representatives of five Western nations clashed over the issue of withdrawal of South African troops from the illegally ruled territory.

Talks between the South African delegation, headed by "Prime Minister" John Vorster, and the five Western nation members of the United Nations Security Council — Great Britain, France, West Germany, Canada and the U.S. — ended abruptly after a two and one-half hour morning session on September 22. None of the delegates on either side, who held separate talks in the afternoon, would comment on the session, but informed sources said the breakdown indicated a serious disagreement had developed, Reuters reports.

The White apartheid regime and the Western delegates have held several rounds of talks over the past months in an effort to agree on a plan for bringing Black majority rule to Namibia, which South Africa continues to rule in violation of numerous U.N. resolutions.

An informed source said that the major item on last Friday's agenda was the continued presence of thousands of South African troops in Namibia. The Western nations favor a phased withdrawal of South African troops and the introduction of a U.N. peacekeeping force. The Vorster regime, however, has maintained Namibia is necessary to protect the White settler population prior to the election establishing Black majority rule.

The South West Africa People's Organization (SWAPO), which is leading the armed struggle against the White minority government in Namibia, in a recent meeting with the Western delegates, reaffirmed its demand that South African troops completely withdraw from Namibia before elections.

At previous meetings between South Africa and the Western delegates, it was agreed that an administrator-general would be appointed for Namibia — which has been denounced by SWAPO — and that the territory would become independent no later than December, 1978.

In announcing recently that there will be no "elections" in South Africa in November, (see last week's BLACK PANTHER), Vorster said that the new 171-seat parliament will exclude the six White deputies from Namibia for the first time since 1969.

Meanwhile, the People's Liberation Army of Namibia (PLAN), the armed forces of SWAPO, announced recently that they wiped out over 800 enemy troops during the first half of this year.

A SWAPO war communiqué issued from Dar es Salaam, Tanzania, said that PLAN guerrillas destroyed over 80 enemy vehicles, shot down or destroyed on the ground 30 enemy aircraft and captured large quantities of war equipment. □ in Namibia. Apart from the thousands of enemy soldiers and their mercenary allies from Europe and North America put out of action, we have captured large quantities of weapons and destroyed military bases and posts in the eastern, northern, northeastern and northwestern zones of Namibia. SWAPO now has large semi-liberated areas in the northeastern part of our country where units of PLAN are carrying out semi-administrative functions.

As a direct response to PLAN's mounting action, the enemy has deployed more than 50,000 troops around the country resulting in constantly increasing military appropriations bills. Then there is the South African racial strategy of moving people from their living areas to deny SWAPO guerrillas access to the people. We have mined all the roads in the northeastern area and they cannot enter this area now, even on foot; they have to move in helicopters. They are arriving in helicopters and forcing the people into them and removing them by air. In April and May this year these operations were intensified. A lot of brutality is going on as these people they forcibly remove are then taken to concentration camps. □

THE BLACK PANTHER PARTY PROGRAM

MARCH 29, 1972 PLATFORM

WHAT WE WANT, WHAT WE BELIEVE

1. WE WANT FREEDOM, WE WANT POWER TO DETERMINE THE DESTINY OF OUR BLACK AND OPPRESSED COMMUNITIES

We believe that Black and oppressed people will not be free until we are able to determine our destinies in our own communities ourselves, by fully controlling all the institutions which exist in our communities.

2. WE WANT FULL EMPLOYMENT FOR OUR PEOPLE.

We believe that the federal government is responsible and obligated to give every person employment or a guaranteed income. We believe that if the American businessmen will not give full employment, then the technology and means of production should be taken from the businessmen and placed in the community so that the people of the community can organize and employ all of its people and give a high standard of living.

3. WE WANT AN END TO THE ROBBERY BY THE CAPITALIST OF OUR BLACK AND OPPRESSED COMMUNITIES.

We believe that this racist government has robbed us and now we are demanding the overdue debt of forty acres and two mules. Forty acres and two mules were promised 100 years ago as restitution for slave labor and mass murder of Black people. We will accept the payment in currency which will be distributed to our many communities. The American racist has taken part in the slaughter of over fifty million Black people. Therefore, we feel this is a modest demand that we make.

4. WE WANT DECENT HOUSING, FIT FOR THE SHELTER OF HUMAN BEINGS.

We believe that if the landlords will not give decent housing to our Black and oppressed communities, then housing and the land should be made into cooperatives so that the people in our communities, with government aid, can build and make decent housing for the people.

5. WE WANT EDUCATION FOR OUR PEOPLE THAT EXPOSES THE TRUE NATURE OF THIS DECADENT AMERICAN SOCIETY. WE WANT EDUCATION THAT TEACHES US OUR TRUE HISTORY AND OUR ROLE IN THE PRESENT-DAY SOCIETY.

We believe in an educational system that will give to our people a knowledge of self, if you do not have knowledge of yourself and your position in the society and the world, then you will have little chance to know anything else.

6. WE WANT COMPLETELY FREE HEALTH CARE FOR ALL BLACK AND OPPRESSED PEOPLE.

We believe that the government must provide, free of charge, for the people, health facilities which will not only treat our diseases, most of which have come about as a result of our oppression, but which will also develop preventative medical programs to guarantee our future survival. We believe that mass health education and research programs must be developed to give all Black and oppressed people access to advanced scientific and medical information, so we may provide ourselves with proper medical attention and care.

7. WE WANT AN IMMEDIATE END TO POLICE BRUTALITY AND MURDER OF BLACK PEOPLE, OTHER PEOPLE OF COLOR, ALL OPPRESSED PEOPLE INSIDE THE UNITED STATES.

We believe that the racist and fascist government of the United States uses its domestic enforcement agencies to carry out its program of oppression against Black people, other people of color and poor people inside the United States. We believe it is our right, therefore, to defend ourselves against such armed forces and that all Black and oppressed people should be armed for self-defense of our homes and communities against these fascist police forces.

8. WE WANT AN IMMEDIATE END TO ALL WARS OF AGGRESSION.

We believe that the various conflicts which exist around the world stem directly from the aggressive desires of the U.S. ruling circle and government to force its domination upon the oppressed people of the world. We believe that if the U.S. government or its lackeys do not cease these aggressive wars that it is the right of the people to defend themselves by any means necessary against their aggressors.

9. WE WANT FREEDOM FOR ALL BLACK AND OPPRESSED PEOPLE NOW HELD IN U.S. FEDERAL, STATE, COUNTY, CITY AND MILITARY PRISONS AND JAILS. WE WANT TRIALS BY A JURY OF PEERS FOR ALL PERSONS CHARGED WITH SO-CALLED CRIMES UNDER THE LAWS OF THIS COUNTRY.

We believe that the many Black and oppressed people now held in U.S. prisons and jails have not received fair and impartial trials under a racist and fascist judicial system and should be free from incarceration. We believe in the ultimate elimination of all wretched, inhuman penal institutions, because the masses of men and women imprisoned inside the United States or by the U.S. military are the victims of oppressive conditions which are the real cause of their imprisonment. We believe that when persons are brought to trial that they must be guaranteed, by the United States, juries of their peers, attorneys of their choice and freedom from imprisonment while awaiting trial.

10. WE WANT LAND, BREAD, HOUSING, EDUCATION, CLOTHING, JUSTICE, PEACE AND PEOPLE'S COMMUNITY CONTROL OF MODERN TECHNOLOGY.

At any given course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bonds which have connected them with another, and to assume, among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and nature's God entitle them; a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; that, to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that, when ever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute a new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and, accordingly, all experience hath shown that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But, when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security.

SECRET HANGINGS CONTINUE

SMITH REGIME EXECUTES
BLACK RHODESIAN
ACTIVISTS

(London, England) - At least 11 Zimbabwean (Black Rhodesian) political activists, including two leading officials of the African National Council of Zimbabwe (ANC/Z), have been secretly executed by the Rhodesian government since the beginning of July, reports Focus on Political Repression in Southern Africa.

Robert Bhebe, a deputy provincial secretary of ANC(Z), which is an affiliate of the Zimbabwe African People's Union (ZAPU), was hanged by the Ian Smith regime on July 13. A month later, on August 12, Palnos Zehama, the group's central provincial organizing secretary, was hanged, also in secret.

With the exception of the public announcement in January of this year of the hanging of eight supporters of Bishop Abel Muzorewa, the Smith regime's confirmation of Bhebe's execution was the first time it had officially confirmed an execution since April 1975.

Bhebe, who was in Umtali at the time of his arrest and trial, had a long history of involvement in the nationalist cause. He spent several years in detention, including a period of 17 months in solitary confinement at the Bululu Range prison camp in the early 1970's. He is believed to have suffered interrogation and torture.

At the end of 1974, Bhebe was released by the regime to take part in talks in Lusaka, along with other nationalists. He subsequently moved to Umtali with his family to start a pig and poultry co-operative farm. On March 10, 1977, he was sentenced to death by a Special Court in Umtali on conviction of recruiting or ending chief justice, Hector Mardonald, in June. A petition for clemency to the Smith regime's president, John Wratshall, was also turned down.

Subsequent attempts to save Robert Bhebe's life included a request from Shridath Ramphal, coercing others to go for guerrilla training.

According to the evidence before the court, Bhebe had directed four people from Inyanga to the ANC(Z) office in Bulawayo, from where they would be sent on to Botswana.

His appeal was dismissed by the Commonwealth secretary-general, to the International Committee of the Red Cross to "use its good offices" to prevent "the clandestine execution of Zimbabwean nationalists by the illegal regime."

On Wednesday morning, July 13, however, relatives of Bhebe were informed when they arrived at Salisbury prison to visit him that he had already been hanged. The execution was confirmed on July 15 by the regime's secretary for the "Ministry of Justice," M.F. Garnett.

It is believed that two other activists were hanged together with Bhebe, although the regime refused to confirm this.

Mobilize Against People's Angola

(Lusaka, Angola) - Who wants to "destabilize" Angola? With the liberation forces gaining ground throughout southern Africa, there are more reasons for imperialism to move against Angola today than ever before.

And now, in the original target period for the West's "Operation Cobra" plan to overthrow the progressive MPLA-led government, a new attack is being mounted. At the center of this drive is the defeated UNITA-South Africa alliance — with powerful backing from the West. Guardian correspondent Sara Rodriguez reports.

The goal is to destroy both Angola and the Namibian fighters of the South West Africa People's Organization (SWAPO), while artificially prolonging the life of the moribund Ian Smith regime in Rhodesia. This done, imperialism's African kingdom — South Africa — would be given the time and territory it needs to insure survival.

The effort to dismantle the revolutionary base area Angola provides in the region is being intensified as the military and

BANTU EDUCATION SYSTEM UNDER ATTACK

AZANIAN STUDENTS INTENSIFY STRUGGLE AGAINST APARTHEID

(Johannesburg, South Africa) - The two-month-old school boycott launched by Azanian (Black South African) youth in urban areas throughout the country has become the basis for a massive Black uprising against the White apartheid regime of South Africa.

The battle lines are firmly drawn. Day after day, armored police trucks rumble along the dusty streets of the vast Black "township" of Soweto outside Johannesburg. Students, led by the Soweto Students Representative Council (SSRCL), pick the police with rocks. The police retaliate with tear gas and birdshot.

At least 20 Azanian youth have died during demonstrations in a protest that appears to be without end, writes Paul Iredale for Readers.

But like last year, when hundreds of Azanians died in a week of bloody clashes in Soweto, for every one student that falls there seem to be 10 to take his or her place.

Last year the specific protest was about the use of Afrikaans, the language of 60 per cent of White South Africans, as a medium of instruction for Blacks. This year it is about the whole system of Black, or Bantu, education.

Student leaders in Soweto have called for a total boycott of classes until the second-class system of Bantu education, with per student cost of less than one-tenth of Azanian students are courageously intensifying their struggle against apartheid, despite enormous sacrifices.

The money spent on White education, is abolished.

Recently, police and administrators have replied by taking over the administration of Soweto schools and taking a tough line with student agitators. The threats, however, have had no effect on the 27,000 students in Soweto's 42 secondary schools.

The objections to Bantu education are clearly justified. Although the government has repeatedly said that the Black and White educational systems are equal, what this means is that all students, regardless of color, have to take the same exams at the end of their school career.

The Department of Bantu Education, the government body that controls teaching of young Azanians, has been forced to admit that there are some startling discrepancies between the Black and White systems.

According to G.J. Rousseau, the top civil servant in the Department, the average annual per capita spending on a Black student is about $52. This compares with the amount the government spends on each White student — about $520 a year.

The teacher-pupil ratio, too, varies markedly between the races. For Whites it is estimated to be about one to 20, while for Blacks it is around one to 49.

The Department of Bantu Education alleges that it is limited by the amount of funds the central government of "Prime Minister" John Vorster is prepared to allocate to teaching Blacks. It maintains that the quality of education it can provide for young Blacks is also restricted by the number and standard of Black teachers in South Africa.

AFRICA IN FOCUS

United States

(Pittsburgh, Pa.) - Carnegie-Mellon University here is training 26 Rhodesians, 19 of them Black, in a one-year graduate program in Urban and Public Affairs, the New York Times reported last week. The students have each signed a pledge to return to Rhodesia and make their skills available to the Black majority government that is expected to take control next year. The $100,000 program has close ties to U.S. big business as it was conceived by E.F. Andrews, a vice-president of the Pittsburgh-based Allegheny Ludlum Industries, Inc., whose steel division produces stainless steel heavily dependent on Rhodesian chromium. Andrews, who has traveled frequently to Rhodesia, is typical of the American businessmen who wish to retain U.S. influence in Rhodesia after Black majority rule is established. In June of this year, Otto Davis, dean of the Carnegie-Mellon University Graduate School of Urban and Public Affairs, presented a proposal at a meeting in New York to 16 unnamed potential contributors who sought assurance that the University would train Rhodesians qualified to return to the breakaway British colony and enter government service. The students take such courses as economics, cost benefit analysis, accounting and management and information systems.

Kenya

(Nairobi, Kenya) - The Kenyan government recently opened a new $1.1 million complex for research on early man in Africa. The three-story center, containing laboratories, offices and fossil storage facilities, is called the International Louis Leakey Memorial Institute for African Prehistory. The creation of the Institute is expected to provide a boost for scientific studies of the evolution of the human species, especially in East Africa, widely regarded by archaeologists as the birthplace of humankind. It was in East Africa where the late Dr. Leakey made numerous fossil and stone-tool discoveries of ancient civilizations.

Z.A.N.U. Secretary-General Pushes Single Army For Patriotic Front

During his recent two-month trip to Africa, Steve Talbot interviewed Robert Mugabe, co-leader of the Patriotic Front, the main nationalist alliance in Zimbabwe (Rhodesia). Mugabe, 51, a Marxist with six college degrees, is also the secretary-general of the Zimbabwe African National Union (ZANU), the Mozambique-based guerrilla group.

(Dar es Salaam, Tanzania) - Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo, the leaders of the two guerrilla armies fighting Rhodesia's White-minority regime, met in Mozambique in September to discuss unification of their armies. Earlier this summer, Mugabe said, "If we make this attempt at unity and it fails, we fall the people of Zimbabwe."

In an interview in Tanzania Mugabe emphasized that his goal is an "absolute merger" of ZANU with Nkomo's ZAPU forces.

Longtime rivals, ZANU and ZAPU formed a tactical alliance last October to participate in the British-sponsored Geneva conference on Rhodesia. Skeptics predicted the uneasy alliance — the Patriotic Front — would soon fall apart.

On the contrary, ZANU and ZAPU have managed to maintain their political alliance and have won the endorsement of the Organization of African Unity as the sole legitimate liberation movement in Zimbabwe.

Mugabe said ZANU and ZAPU are attempting to reconstitute the

STEVE BIKO'S FAMILY PLANS TO SUE SOUTH AFRICAN POLICE

(Johannesburg, South Africa) - The family of Steve Biko said last week that it may sue the security police and "Justice Minister" James Kruger after the autopsy report of the murdered Azanian leader is made public.

Meanwhile, South African police shot and killed a Soweto man whom they described as a "guerrilla" and a Black youth in Dimbaza "township" outside King William's Town, where over 20,000 people attended Biko's funeral on Sunday, September 25.

According to the source, Biko, the 30-year-old founder of the Black Consciousness Movement who was murdered on September 12 while in detention, had suffered three broken ribs before his death. He also had several lusions on his body, the source said, who explained that a blow on the left side of Biko's skull caused the fatal brain hemorrhage.

An independent neurosurgeon and other specialists are studying slides of Biko's brain cells, the source said. The autopsy report is being written by the state pathologist. A pathologist for the Biko family who attended the autopsy will check and duplicate the state's report.

Meanwhile, the whereabouts of Peter Jones, the friend with whom Biko was driving when he was arrested on August 18, are being sought. Jones, like Biko, was arrested under the apartheid state's "Suppression of Terrorism" laws. It is presumed that if he is still alive, he is being held incommunicado.

The last mention of Jones, a top aide to Biko, came from Kruger, who said police "finished questioning the other person (Jones) on September 5 and began interrogating Biko."

On September 26, the day after Biko's funeral, shooting broke out in Soweto before dawn when police surrounded a home after receiving a tip about alleged "terrorist activities."

An unidentified Black man inside the house opened fire with an automatic weapon, police said, injuring a police major in the shoulder and hip and slightly wounding a constable. Police returned the fire and killed the man, whom they said was a trained guerrilla armed with a Czech machine gun and a Soviet

Blacks Evicted From Salisbury Suburbs

(Salisbury, Rhodesia) - Rhodesian security police raided the homes of Zimbabwean (Black Rhodesian) families living in a "Whites only" suburb here recently, only hours after the start of a campaign by White businessmen to promote racial harmony in the area.

In other developments, United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim last week accepted a resolution adopted by the Security Council asking him to send a representative to Rhodesia to lay the groundwork for establishing Black majority rule in the breakaway British colony.

The homes of the 35 Zimbabwean families who reside in Houghton Park were visited by a police contingent which drove from house to house in a jeep.

Zimbabwean businessman Bruce Chitanda said the police asked him how he had come to buy a home in the low-income White suburb. Under the country's racist Land Tenure Act, it is illegal for Black people to live in a "Whites only" designated area.

The police refused to discuss the Ku Klux Klan-style rule except to say that the action took place late at night allegedly because the officer in charge could find no other time in his schedule.

"Housing Minister" William Irvine said the Salisbury City Council would serve eviction orders "as soon as possible" and that police had been ordered to investigate White real estate agents who had sold homes to Blacks.

The campaign slogan of the White businessmen promoting integration in Houghton Park has been prominently advertised on local radio and television and in the newspapers: "You Don't Have To Suddenly Love Your Neighbor — Just Understand Him."

The worsening political and military situation facing the Ian Smith regime has caused numerous White families to leave Houghton Park in recent months. As a result, Zimbabweans have begun to move into the area, usually paying more for houses than Whites would.

One White real estate agent said some White homeowners had sold their houses to speculators for $8,500 while Zimbabweans paid up to $25,000. □

ing Oakland," one person said.

Presenting the defense's justification for seeking the subpoenas, attorney Morse forcefully repeated Huey's position that he is innocent of all charges and that, in fact, the case is just one more attempt to "disrupt, discredit and destroy" the Black Panther Party and Huey in particular.

"No legitimate argument has been made as to why they [the government] should withhold this information," Morse said.

"Everytime we succeed in obtaining documents from the FBI" and other agencies, the scope of the secret war against Huey and the BPP deepens.

As an example, Morse cited the recent revelation that the building engineer where Huey formerly resided at 1200 Lakeside was a paid FBI informant who installed listening devices in the walls of the apartment adjacent to Huey's.

This man, named Roger DuClot, Morse said, not only testified against another BPP member when it was unknown he was a paid informant but was listed as a prosecution witness in Huey's case. Certainly the defense had a right to know the extent of DuClot's activities with the FBI.

Morse characterized the government's motion to quash the subpoenas as "another episode of the conspiracy."

Specifically, the five subpoenas seek "information, records, documents, or other writings" in 13 areas of concern. Since it is known that all five agencies conducted illegal, secret surveillance of Huey before he went into forced political exile in August, 1974, "The burden should not be on Mr. Newton to know the fruits of this surveillance."

After listening to both sides, Judge Arne said that he would take the government's motion under consideration and would issue a ruling in the near future.

The preliminary hearing in Huey's case is still scheduled for October 14, at 8:45 a.m., in Department 6 of the Oakland Municipal Court. □

Cambodia

(Peking, People's Republic of China) - Cambodian Prime Minister Pol Pot announced here last week that the situation in Cambodia was "excellent" and indicated that Cambodia's recent border clashes with Vietnam and Thailand had apparently grown out of disputes over territory Cambodia lost during feudal and colonial rule. Pot made the announcement at a banquet in his honor in the Great Hall of the People. Pot's visit here was his first known trip outside Cambodia since the end of the war of liberation there on April 17, 1975. The Cambodian prime minister was announced last week for the first time as the secretary of the Central Committee of the Cambodian Communist Party and Prime Minister in the Cambodian government.

Israel

(Tel Aviv, Israel) - Israel announced last week that it was set to expel 25 Blacks visiting here from the U.S. An Interior Ministry spokesman said the three men, six women and 16 children intended to settle here illegally as members of a Black Hegrew sect, and were in a police lockup prior to their expulsion. The U.S. Embassy said the Black group denied the Israeli charge and said they are Presbyterians who came to Israel to visit Christian holy places.

Vietnam

(New York, N.Y.) - Over 3,000 Americans jam packed the Beacon Theater here last week to celebrate the People's Republic of Vietnam's recent entry to the United Nations. Sponsored by Friendship, a coalition of 40 peace and religious groups, the gathering included noted attorney William Kunstler, David Dellinger, former Attorney General Ramsey Clark and Sam Brown, now director of Action Agency which runs the Peace Corps and Vista. Cora Weiss, national coordinator of Friendship, said the meeting kicked off a national campaign to win support for American aid to reconstruct Vietnam.

Bay Area bluesmen, among them the legendary JIMMY McCracklin (far left), have "paid their dues" but still struggle for survival.

BLACK MUSICIANS STRUGGLE TO SURVIVE

BLUES AROUND THE BAY AREA

"I stayed in Chicago for three miserable years, working small blues clubs on the South and West Sides, getting drunk in cars with famous blues musicians. Then somebody told me that there was a big music scene happening in San Francisco. And the blues were really it. I came to California. Me and a couple hundred other hungry blues musicians."

(Oakland, Calif.) - "I confess: I play blues," says Jimmy McCracklin, an East Oakland resident who is one of the more prominent Black blues musicians on the Bay Area blues scene.

"At times I even make money at it," says McCracklin, who, in the late fifties and early sixties, had three million sellers: Think, The Work, and I Just Got To Know. He wrote two gold records for other artists: Tramp, recorded by Lowell Fulson, and made famous by Otis Redding and Carla Thomas; and The Thrill Is Gone, the song that put B.B. King over the top.

"I grew up in a neighborhood in Chicago where only Blacks came on the buses in the morning, cleaned the apartments, and left, just as quietly, on the buses in the evening," McCracklin recalls. "When I was 17, I traveled through Europe as a blues piano player, I worked for omelettes and wine in Spain; beer and cheese in England; hash and oysters in France. I came back to America with hepatitis," the Black musician says.

That was 13 years ago. There was a blues scene in the Bay Area then; there had been since the late 1940's, when Black people migrated from Louisiana and Texas to work at the big shipyards here.

In the early seventies, John

James (J.J.) Malone had a big hit single called It's A Shame. Malone plays mostly piano now. He has a job fixing airplanes and lives in Oakland, around the corner from Laney College.

Malone has converted his dining room into a little recording studio. During one loose slow blues, on a recent tape he made with a blues band, Malone sings, "I was born in Decatur, Alabama, Morgan County, 1935, that's the only words I can think of."

In the sixties, when Malone was living in Fresno, he played guitar for Merv Dee Walton, who wrote One Room Country Little Shack.

"Man, that's all I did then: play music," Malone recalls. "Except chop some odd cotton and wash a few cars. We played the chitlin' circuit, you know."

"The White man has always said, 'I'm gonna go over here.' He'll go over and sit in a warehouse and listen to the blues and drink and get drunk, but he didn't want his wife and kids to see this. And now, what I'm saying is the wife and kids want to come over now and see what's going on over there now."

"And Black people have always seen what is true, just about, in some kind of way. I mean they are faced with reality and that's probably why they going for fantasies of music," Malone continues.

"When I was a kid I used to love Elvis Presley. I used to try and grow sideburns. I'd draw them on there if I couldn't grow them. Not because I really liked him, it was because all these other images was hidden from me."

"I was told guitar players are dumb, stupid. The cat sits on a tree and plays guitar all day and that ain't shit. You got to do like Elvis Presley if you want to get anywhere."

"Whereas it should have been Chuck Berry because he created that jump-around-the-stage-with-your thing. He started that. But then he went to prison on a larceny and stayed a long time. These images are being fed to the youth and the youth go with the winner."

"Black people in this country have always been programmed what to like. We have never been able to say, 'I like that and want it.' We've always been told, 'You belong in church, that's where you should be. These are chittlins here, whether they stink or not. This is nigger food, you eat this.'"

"We couldn't like Chuck Berry because he was an outcast, you know, but we could like Elvis because he represented the American dream."

Matthew Jacob (Boogie Jakel), is from Baton Rouge, Louisiana. He has been in the Bay Area since 1961. In the fifties he had a hit called Bad Luck and Trouble. He works at the University of California. He's in electronics now and works with computers, repairs radios and televisions.

He plays all the clubs in the area. He plays steadily at the Spider Web, on Grove in Oakland.

Sonny Rhodes lives in Oakland. He plays guitar and sings.

Tom Mazzolini has organized the San Francisco blues festivals for the past four years.

"A lot of the focus has now been heading out this way," says Mazzolini. "You know, the ballroom scene created a lot of jobs for musicians. It also created a scene. People like Charlie Musslewhite, Luther Tucker, Francis Clay, Freddie Roddeno; John Lee Hooker left Detroit and bought a house out here; and Mike Bloomfield and Elvin Bishop came out here because of the ballrooms and stayed. So there has been an influx." □

This Is The Time

*This is the time
we were all waiting for.
Our guns are light in our hands
the reasons and aims of the struggle
clear in our minds.*

*The blood shed by our heroes makes us sad but resolute.
It is the price of our freedom.
We keep them close in our hearts from their example new generations
— revolutionary generations are already being born.*

*Ahead of us we see bitter

But we see also our children running free
our country plundered no more.*

*This is the time to be ready and firm
The time to give ourselves to the Revolution.*

Azanian Students Intensify Struggle

In general, the White apartheid regime turns out Black teachers who are less qualified than Whites because they receive an inferior education. Many barely have minimum teaching qualifications. With some 230,000 new pupils coming into the Azanian educational system in South Africa every year, there just are not enough teachers to go around.

Black students argue that Bantu education is modeled on the system of the late "Prime Minister" Dr. Hendrik Verwoerd, who said of the old, multiracial education policy:

"By blindly producing pupils trained on a European model, the vain hope was created among 'natives' that they could occupy posts within the European community despite the system of apartheid."

The students say the "education for domestication" he then produced is still the cornerstone of Bantu education. Black students also object to the fact that the age at which children can be admitted to school is five for a White child and seven for a Black child.

Sibile Kambele, Black principal of Soweto's Orlando High School, whose students are in the vanguard of the present protest, says the government will not meet the students' demands to abolish Bantu education.

Steve Biko's Family To Sue South African Police

Five hundred miles away to the south in Dinabara "township," near Biko's home, a crowd of Black youth burned down the offices of the Bantu administration board that runs the "township," stoned buildings and overturned a police truck.

A police official said that when the youth tried to set fire to a Azanian students, nearly 175,000 of them in Soweto alone, intend to continue their struggle against apartheid until victory.

"It touches at the very core of our system. The establishment's remote fears are that if Bantu education, which has a complete ministry, can be scrapped, then the repercussions will be serious. One breakthrough can crack the whole structure," he said.

Kambele's school, where young Azanians are taught from the ages of about 12 to 15, is meant to have 900 students. During the past few weeks, only about 20 per cent of them have been turning up.

Each of the secondary schools in Soweto elects two representatives to the SSRC and it is this body that is most influential in the Soweto population of over one million.

It is not only in the field of education that the SSRC controls Soweto. Recently, the body instructed Blacks in the "township" not to pay rent increases authorized by the White authorities. The increases remain unpaid.

Meanwhile, compromise seems more and more unlikely. Even the more liberal members of the ruling National Party are more outspoken than ever in their determination to crush the unrest with force.

The problem, however, will not go away. Behind the 27,000 pupils at secondary schools in Soweto, there are 145,000 more in junior schools in the "township."

Like Amílcar Cabral, the assassinated founder of Mozambique's FRELIMO, Biko "understood the structural economic basis of racial and colonial oppression and other forms of exploitation," the newspaper said. In 1970, Biko said:

"... the Black people of the world, in choosing to reject the legacy of colonialism and White domination, have at last established a solid basis for meaningful cooperation among themselves in the larger battle of the Third World against the rich nations."

In a statement made in January, 1971, Biko, founder of the South African Students Organization (SASO) and the Black People's Convention (BPC), pinpointed one of the key issues in the Azanian liberation struggle:

"It has never occurred to the liberals that the integration they insisted upon as an effective way of opposing apartheid was impossible to achieve in South Africa. One has to overhaul the whole system before hoping to get Black and White walking hand in hand to oppose a common enemy."

INSIDE LATIN AMERICA

Panama

(Washington, D.C.) - A U.S. Army sergeant sold to the government of Panama transcripts of official Panamanian telephone conversations intercepted by American intelligence devices in 1975 and 1976, Defense Department officials said last week. The conversations, intercepted by microwaves, had nothing to do with the negotiations in that period between the U.S. and Panama for the new Panama Canal treaties. Pentagon officials claimed. Nor did the case involve "blackmail," they said. American intelligence officials gave the sergeant, who has not been publicly identified, immunity from prosecution, and he was given an honorable discharge from the Army last summer, the officials said.

Chile

(Santiago, Chile) - Unemployment here is expected to top 13 per cent this year, while purchasing power is down to 1969 recession levels as a result of the Chilean government's relentless drive toward a balanced budget. Through a severe austerity program, drastically slashing public welfare budgets, eliminating price subsidies and forcing small businesses to collapse, Chile's right-wing military government is striving to transform the country into one of the Western world's best examples of "growing, free-market capitalism." There is no congress or elections to oppose or impede the government's economic program. Foreign reserves have grown from less than $10 million to more than $700 million. Chilean goods are beginning to compete in the world market. Even right-wing supporters of the government's economic policy admit, however, that the poor have paid dearly for Chile's transformation. One of the ways the government is reducing the country's debt, now totaling $5.2 billion, is by forcing small businesses to collapse. Surviving big businesses have thus been strengthened to compete on the international market. Toward this end, the government has greatly reduced tariffs and encouraged Western imports to flow into Chile.

Black South African policemen lay dead in the street after being stoned to death following the funeral of Black leader Steve Biko.

MARTIAL ARTS

Women In Contact Sports

The increasing participation of girls and women in sports has improved satisfactorily in the last decade. Commercialism, profit over health, in the U.S., however, has brought about some sorry, if not senseless events.

Women's full contact kick-boxing, i.e., men versus women, and women's professional football (not flag or touch, but tackled) are two recent creations. While there are sports that all able persons can participate in, the quest for profits and entertainment has brought about the abuse of the individual's health-oriented participation in athletics through contact sports such as boxing, wrestling and football.

Anatomical differences between women and men favor men. Although maturation of the female is accelerated, the longer, slower growing period experienced by the male results in a heavier, larger structure that, generally speaking, possesses mechanical (movement) and structural (physical) advantages.

The longer and heavier bones of boys and men provide a greater potential for strength in the hands and feet, resulting in greater speed and force — a decided advantage in throwing, striking and explosive types of events.

Contrary to common opinion, girls and women are not as outclassed in physiological respects as some people assume. Social patterns have a great deal more to do with men being more "visible" in sports than women.

Because women's athletics, or athletics in which boys/girls and women/men participate together have been ignored in favor of gladiatorial "man against man" sports, women have been denied opportunities to develop life-long interests.

Contact sports, per se, are creations of Western civilizations, and the occasions of a "man vs. woman knock down drag out contest" indicate all too significantly the lack of mass interest and participation in events genuinely beneficial to humankind.

JUANTORENA SETS SIGHTS ON 1980 AFTER VICTORIES IN WORLD CUP GAMES

Havana, Cuba — Cuba's premier track and field performer, Alberto Juantorena, was the center of national pride and attention when he returned home recently after becoming the first person ever to score a double victory in the 400- and 800-meter run at the Olympics and the World Cup.

Upon his arrival home from the first World Cup track meet in Dusseldorf, Germany, coach Enrique Figueroa and the entire Cuban delegation were greeted at Havana's airport by Jorge Garcia Bango, president of the National Institute of Sports, Physical Education and Recreation (INDER).

Juantorena is scheduled to complete his track and field activities for this year by competing at the III Spartakiade of the Friendly Armies. Juantorena, a staunch defender of Cuba's people's revolution, commented, "To me, it means fulfilling our commitment to our government, our Revolutionary Armed Forces and to the 60th anniversary of the Great (Russian) October Revolution."

While conversing with reporters from the Cuban Granma newspaper, Juantorena pointed out that he had run over 1,300 kilometers this year, counting training and competition. When asked about his stunning performance at the World Cup Games, Juantorena replied:

"I'm very happy that I won two championship titles in the same event, in this case a world event, and that I lived up to the plans for Cuba and the Americas team in the 400- and 800-meter races."

The World Cup was different than the Olympics, said Juantorena, in that "the World Cup has one particular characteristic, and that is that everything is decided in one race. Athletes don't like that — at least, I don't like it."

Looking to the future Juantorena announced to the Granma reporters, "I think I should start participating in longer races, with a view to the Moscow Olympics in 1980. I'll be 29 then."

"There'll be more strong competitors then," the tall, lanky Cuban runner explained. "... I expect to drop the 400 meters at the end of 1978 and go into the 1,600, a test which, like the 800 meters, calls for endurance, speed and long strides."

Cuba's premier trackman ALBERTO JUANTORENA after 400-meter victory in World Cup games and (right) reading pledge of athletes.

Currently, Juantorena holds the world record (at sea level) for the 400 meters. He expects the winner in the next summer Olympics to clock 44 seconds flat, and that the 800 meters will be run in under one minute, 43 seconds flat and the 1,500 meters under three minutes, 30 seconds — all of which would be world records at this time.

Many track buffs were waiting for the inevitable showdown between Juantorena and Kenya's world-class, 800-meter runner, Mike Bolt. The two runners did not meet during the Montreal Olympics due to the African boycott over the issue of athletic participation with apartheid South Africa.

sity Games and the World Cup.

When they met in the Universiades, Juantorena was victorious on each occasion. Juantorena recalls, "Bolt put up a much better fight in the World Cup than he did in Zurich. I wasn't looking for a record; I decided to wait and see what happened."

"I know that I was stronger in final sprints than he," said the Cuban runner, "and that's the way it turned out. I was almost waiting for him to start the attack."

During his European tour and at the World Cup Games, Juantorena clearly established himself as one of the world's foremost track and field performers and contributed to his country's rapid progress in international athletics. □

Furor Over Televised Fight Scoring

(New York, N.Y.) — The usually anticlimactic controversy which accompanies Muhammad Ali's title bouts arose following his unanimous 16-round decision victory here last week over challenger Ernie Shavers, who has raised a furor over the televising of the officials' scorecards.

"That will be stopped," said former Black heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson, one of two acting members of the New York State Athletic Commission. "Television will not show the scorecards again," said Patterson. "Television is not going to run boxing like that."

Ali's trainer, Angelo Dundee, saw every card from a television in the dressing room and could have directed the champion accordingly. Shaver, his manager and supporters have charged, Dundee said he didn't tell Ali, but Shavers' corner didn't think of the scheme and gave the challenger misinformation that he was winning going into the final round.

The experimental electronic precedent created an immediate uproar in ring circles and initiated protests from some leading boxing officials.

Z.A.N.U. Leader Pushes Single Army For Patriotic Front

Zimbabwe People's Army (ZIPA) — a force put together nearly two years ago by ZANU and ZAPU commanders but splintered early last year by factional fighting. ZANU guerrillas are currently based in Mozambique, while ZAPU forces are in Zambia.

"We realized that operating from two different camps has created certain difficulties," Mugabe acknowledged. "The process of integrating our forces may not be as easy as some people imagine. That is why we want thorough preparation for the merger."

The first step, Mugabe said, was to establish a subcommittee of the Patriotic Front to examine all aspects of forming a combined guerrilla army.

That step was taken last January when ZANU and ZAPU signed a unity agreement in Mozambique. (Several days later, the ZAPU representative who signed the agreement, Jason Moyo, was assassinated by a letter bomb. Moyo was a long-time advocate of ZAPU-ZANU unity. Patriotic Front leaders blamed Rhodesian agents for the killing.)

Asked if there were any continuing ideological differences that might undermine ZANU-ZAPU unity, Mugabe replied,

"No. We have both agreed that socialism is the system that we shall be pursuing once our country is independent. And we are agreed that our common enemy just now is imperialism and colonialism. We must demolish the present system in Rhodesia — a system of exploitation and racism — and create a national, democratic state. All forces in Zimbabwe that agree with this must be united at this stage, regardless of their other differences."

One issue that has divided ZAPU and ZANU in the past is the Sino-Soviet split. Joshua Nkomo and ZAPU received backing from the Soviet Union. (Nkomo at times has also had the support of the United States.) ZANU was once strongly identified with China. However, ZANU has moved away from Peking since the Chinese sided with the U.S. and South Africa against the leftist MPLA in Angola.

"We do not want to be confused by the conflict between other people," Mugabe stated. "The Sino-Soviet dispute must not be imported into our relations, the relations between ZANU and ZAPU. If we are going to be friends with any of these socialist countries, their own conflict must not be made our own."

Now China and the Soviet Union both officially support the Patriotic Front.

Mugabe criticized the U.S. government for a history of "aiding and abetting reactionary, minority regimes in southern Africa," but he said he would welcome moves by Washington to pressure the Smith regime to resign and accept majority rule.

"Has there been a transformation in Washington or is Carter still pursuing the old Africa policies?" Mugabe asked. Mugabe said he was disturbed by the Carter administration's failure to take any action to stop the flow of American mercenaries to Rhodesia.

He also charged that U.S. spotter planes and assorted weapons "have found their way to Johannesburg and Salisbury."

"Andrew Young has come to us as a messenger of a 'new' American policy," Mugabe said. "But, of course, we do not accept Young's thesis that we should lay down our guns, be nonviolent and do it the way he did it in the South. Our situation is quite different.

"It is a colonial situation, and there is absolutely no other effective way of overthrowing Smith than by using arms. We would like the United States to appreciate that fact."

political situation deteriorates for the racist minority regimes.

UNITA, the Angolan "liberation group" which last year joined with South Africa and the CIA-sponsored FNLA in an attempt to take over the Luanda government, is once again being brought to center stage.

UNITA, led by Jonas Savimbi, retreated from Angola to sanctuary at South African army bases in neighboring Namibia.

Since the beginning of the year, UNITA has been staging terror raids against the civilian population and committing economic sabotage in southern Angola. The campaign, also directed against SWAPO rear bases inside Angola, is being carried out with South African weapons, training and "advisers" — all openly acknowledged by UNITA leaders.

playes at the ANC(Z) office in Highfield, Salisbury. He was sentenced to death by the High Court in Salisbury on April 26, 1977, on conviction of recruiting for guerrilla training. His appeal was dismissed in July by Chief Justice Mordernald, and as in ibhebe's case, an unsuccessful petition for mercy was addressed to the Rhodesian president.

On August 12, 1977, the London office of ZAPU received news by telephone from Salisbury that Zebumba and seven other Zimbabweans had been hanged the previous day. As far as is known there has been no official confirmation by the government.

Since April 21, 1975, the date on which the Smith regime ceased issuing formal announcements of hangings, 96 people are known to have been sentenced to death on charges under the Law and Order (Maintenance) Act. A further eight people were sentenced to death in the weeks immediately preceding April 21, 1975, but no report of their execution had appeared by that date.

Of this total of 104 people, only six are known to have been successful on appeal in having their sentences commuted to life imprisonment or less.

Appeals have been dismissed in the cases of Isaac Mabhika, Jameson Kasili, Rabson Mumbona and Talphano Moyo, while Kunenato Mafurete, an 18-year-old youth, had his sentence commuted to life imprisonment. □ would want the truth to be known.

"I couldn't stay on the police force for another 20 years living a lie."

In order for Orlando and Benson to be convicted, the prosecution must prove, in the eyes of an all-White, Huntsville, Texas (where the trial has been moved) jury, that the two officers had intent to seriously injure Campos.

One of the officers (now fired) involved in the incident, Glenn Brinkmeyer, testified that Campos was thrown into the river "to scare him a little first."

When it was obvious that Campos was sinking into the bayou, Brinkmeyer claimed that the reason he didn't attempt to rescue the Chicano himself was because "I didn't think that the officers down there would think too much of me."

Other testimony in the sensational trial revealed that Orlando and Benson had to have been fully aware that Campos would have had great difficulty swimming out of the bayou.

Tex Martin, a driver for the Harris County Sheriff's Department, described the bayou as being "black" with pollution and full of crabs, junk and a few snakes. At the end of the 10-foot retaining wall over which Campos was thrown steel cable jet up from an underwater ledge.

Also, earlier testimony has shown that Campos was intoxicated and was wearing heavy combat boots and pants when he landed in the water, making it impossible for him to swim. □

PENNSYLVANIA INMATE VICTIM OF RACISM

Dear Friend

If there is one underlying understanding that we prisoners all share it is knowledge that the state acts on behalf of the wealthy, and that whenever and wherever prisoners' struggles occur, that state apparatus will be used to repress those movements. However, it is those same masses of people who will eventually destroy, not only the various tools of the capitalists, but the capitalist system itself.

Racism is clearly manifested inside prisons, as illustrated by vicious murders, beatings, harassment and parole denials.

As prisoners, we are not deemed by the law that prisons and the criminal justice system exist to rehabilitate humans. They are means of punishment and control. We are also aware that the cops are the strongarms of the capitalist state.

This apparatus cannot continue to exist, nor will it. The human mind and body can only take so much of this mistreatment in prison. "We Remember Africa."

Justice? She gives her legs only to those who can pay the price. I've never known the law, and being that I'm Black and poor, I doubt that I will ever!

Why? This society is built upon injustice and racism. The only crime I and other people are guilty of is being Black, poor, unemployed or uneducated. In essence we, the prisoners, are the victims.

sales agent for the coal Scotia mined. And Scotia paid Blue Diamond for advice on management, mine safety, and ventilation.

Because Blue Diamond was not the employer of the miners killed, it can't claim immunity from liability lawsuits. But because it did advise on safety and ventilation, it can be held responsible for the deadly explosion.

Chief attorney for Blue Diamond is Bert Combs, former governor of Kentucky and once a judge for the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Part of the evidence introduced to show Blue Diamond and Scotia were separate corporations was an October, 1960, confidential memorandum by Blue Diamond President Gordon Bonnyman. "We [Blue Diamond] will want to operate this property [Scotia] under a different corporation because of our labor contract with the UMW," Bonnyman wrote.

FEDERAL REPORT

After court recessed, Hermansdorfer said that his order to suppress a federal report on the Scotia disaster still stands.

The Mining Enforcement and Safety Administration (MESA) was about to issue its findings on the explosion last month when Blue Diamond asked Hermansdorfer to keep the report under wraps. Hermansdorfer now claims to be waiting for more information from MESA before he will consider lifting his ban.

Meanwhile, the drastic cuts in health care benefits by the UMW union which resulted in the recent 10-week wildcat strike that involved up to 85,000 miners has caused a crisis among the hundreds of thousands of miners, the poor and jobless of Appalachia who are being denied needed medical care.

In July, the United Mine Workers health and retirement fund — presided over by three trustees, one of whom represents the coal operators — cut off payments to union-subsidized clinics and hospitals in the impoverished Appalachian region. At the same time, the health care system's primary users — 800,000 fund beneficiaries — coal miners and their families, also had their medical benefits curtailed.

Coal workers' families now have to pay 40 per cent of their clinic and doctor bills up to $600 a year. The fund used to pay the whole bill. □ him and his Black partner.

Macklin Martin, chairperson of the Law and Justice Committee of the Oakland Citizens Committee for Urban Renewal (OCCUR), blasted City Manager Cecil Riley for misleading the public concerning Smith's drawing of his weapon.

At the September 13 City Council meeting, Riley said that the "preliminary" investigation of the Lakeside Park incident revealed that Smith had not drawn his gun. "Riley attempted to hoodwink the City Council," Martin angrily said.

Among the 10 witnesses Hart said the OPD interviewed regarding the case were the two Black men brutalized and arrested in Lakeside Park. One of the two, Hart alleged, verified Smith's story that the crowd was going to attack him.

Ironically, one of the two brothers, held in jail since the incident, was released the day of the Public Safety Committee hearing.

In addition to Bountree, who spoke on behalf of the Concerned Citizens Committee for Equitable Treatment, Dorothy Cato and Shirley Mahoney, both of whom witnessed the incident, said that at no time did the Black people in the park threaten the officers.

Ms. Cato criticized the heavy police presence in the park on the weekends, the times when Black residents of the area frequent the park in the greatest numbers.

Local Black activist Nathaniel Everett, who lives near the park, said he saw "a gang of police" in the area on August 23. He charged that "they (the police) want to stop us Black folks from being in the park."

Councilwoman Moore was critical of the police report because of its confidential nature. Under the policies of the Internal Affairs Division of the OPD, the names of witnesses cannot be revealed, nor is the report available to the public for scrutiny.

V. Hag Smith, the Black director of Oakland Parks and Recreation, explained that his office had enacted strict regulations governing use of Lakeside Park and had requested more police assistance last year due to the rising crime in the park and its heavy "traffic."

Questioned by Councilman Gilmore, Smith maintained that the regulations for Lakeside are applicable to all Oakland parks.

Two speakers, however, disagreed with Smith as did several people in the audience.

Denise Dubins, speaking on behalf of Young Black Professionals, criticized the City Council for failing to implement the proposals it received from numerous community groups in 1975 concerning police brutality. At that time, a number of public hearings, organized by the East Oakland Clergy, the Black Panther Party and other groups, were held on the rising police violence appointed officials such as Mayor Lionel J. Wilson; state Assemblyman Bill Lockyer and Tom Bates; Alameda County Supervisor John George and Fred Cooper; Oakland City Council members Carter Gilmore, Mary Moore and Frank Ogawa; and Oakland Board of Education members James Norwood and Mel Coughlin.

Among the high-ranking state officials on hand were state Secretary of Health and Welfare Maria Obledo; Secretary of Business and Transportation Richard Silberman; Department of Corrections Director J.J. Enomoto, and Percy Pinkney, special aide to the governor.

OCCUR Executive Director Paul Cobb started the evening by thanking the organizations responsible for organizing the meeting. They included the Black Panther Party; Displaced Homemakers Center, Inc.; Intertribal Friendship House; Mills College Upward Bound; Narcotics Education League; Oakland Community Organizations; OCCUR; Progressive School Citizens; Project Threshold; The International Institute; New Oakland Committee; Golden State Business League; and the Minority Contractors Association.

Mayor Wilson, in his brief remarks, noted the large turnout and thanked the community for "taking time out to be with us this evening." He praised Governor Brown for initiating the opportunity for "meaningful dialogue between the people and the governor."

Turning to the "monumental problems" that face the city of Oakland, the Black mayor pointed out the importance of bettering the quality of education in the public schools.

"It doesn't matter what you do in City Hall, in the county, or anywhere else unless you can do something for the children and the young people. . . Unless we come to grips with the problem of providing basic education for our children, we're not going anywhere very fast with anything."

Wilson cited the state award-winning Oakland Community School for "doing some fantastic things with some of the little children who come out of the same ghettos, who have the same problems and the same disabilities" as children in the city's public schools.

"We need to have the greatest for our children, and the same things that are being done in the Oakland Community School we're going to see done in our public schools," Wilson said.

Gray Davis, Brown's executive secretary and chief of staff, who introduced each official present, served as moderator for the program.

Surfacing repeatedly among the numerous questions raised by the community was the problem of skyrocketing unemployment in Oakland. The audience criticized the state officials for failure to provide programs and funds for employment programs, particularly for minority people as well as the threatened cutbacks in services for the physically disabled and senior citizens.

Several officials, including Obledo, promised to meet with various individuals and groups to discuss their concerns. □

Oakland citizens confront state officials tonight with the problems of unemployment and housing that plague the city.

A PROGRAM FOR SURVIVAL

"All these programs satisfy the deep needs of the community but they are not solutions to our problems. That is why we call them survival programs, meaning survival pending revolution." — Huey P. Newton

LANEY STUDENTS PROTEST RACIST CUTBACKS IN SERVICES

(Oakland, Calif.) - Black, Chicano, Native American, Asian and progressive White students were united last Monday at Laney College in an all-day protest against racist cutbacks in educational services and the refusal of the Laney administration to hire a Native American to head the Native American Studies Department.

The unified protest began with a press conference in which representatives of the Black Student Union, Native American Student Union, Asian Student Union and other Third World and progressive campus organizations - united in the Coalition Against Cutbacks - denounced the Peninsula College Board of Trustees and the Laney College administration for "systematic attacks on our education."

Over 200 classes may be cut from the Laney College curricuprogram, a White anthropology teacher, Leon Glueberg, was selected.

A statement from participants in the Native American Studies program charges, "The administration is insensitive to the needs of the Native Americans on this campus and to the needs of non-Indian students who wish to learn from the first people of this land, the American Indian."

"We demand the human right to govern our destiny," emphasized students, "we want Native American teachers for Native American classes."

Another serious concern of students pointed out at the press conference was the increase of security cops on campus. Several instances of harassment and brutality have occurred on campus due to racist security personnel.

Following the press conference, several hundred students marched throughout the campus before participating in a noon-time rally. The following demands were then presented to Laney

At a press conference and rally held this Monday, Black and Third World students at Laney College denounced a "systematic plan to reduce educational opportunities."

College President Henry Davis:

1) Reopen all classes and eliminate the 25-student requirements;

2) Restore the full book loan program to all students;

3) Expansion of child care program and construction of a child care facility on campus;

4) An increase in financial aid and veterans benefits and expansion of tutorial services;

5) An end to racist educational practices; and

6) The removal of security cops on campus.

The Native American Student Union presented the following special demands: 1) Reopen all Native American Studies classes;

2) Hire full-time Native American instructors; and 3) Stop the harassment of Native American students and Native American instructors.

After presenting their demands to Davis, students announced they expected to receive a response by the end of the week from the Laney Administration and the Peninsula College trustees or they will take further action.

lum this semester due to an arbitrary rule which states that all classes must have a minimum of 25 students. Students point out that this decision is unfair and unjust, particularly due to the fact that state law requires only a 15-student minimum.

"The coalition charges that this new rule is a 'systematic plan to reduce educational opportunities for Third World students and to turn Laney into a vocational college'."

Not only have vital classes been cut from the Laney curriculum, the students stress, but so have such essential services as a free book loan program for poor and working students.

Laney's Native American Student Union, with the backing of the American Indian Movement (AIM), is demanding that Laney College appoint a Native American to head the Native American Studies Department, instead of selecting a qualified Native American to head the Financial Crisis Threatens Meharry Medical College

(Nashville, Tenn.) - Serious financial problems are endangering Meharry Medical College, a 100-year-old private institution here that has trained 62 per cent of the Blacks now practicing medicine and dentistry in the United States.

Caught between rising costs, aggravated by the college's own massive expansion program, and diminishing gifts and grants, the school is 60 to 90 days behind in paying its bills, according to its president, Lloyd C. Eham. School finance officials estimate those debts at more than two million dollars.

Tuition was raised this fall from $2,700 to $4,000 a year, and for the first time in recent memory the college required full payment upon registration, rather than offering an option to defer payment. These two measures helped the school realize an immediate cash income increase of about $300,000.

The school and its medical center, Hubbard Hospital, a major health care provider to the Black and poor community here, recently instituted a 20 per cent cut in all salaries over $10,000 a year, affecting about 515 employees, a third of the payroll. The cuts are expected to continue for at least two months.

The cuts were instituted in the form of a mandatory four-day workweek, but most affected staff members have volunteered to work full time, to help the school maintain its level of services.

Meharry has been the largest single private provider of care to the poor in the city, which is also the home of Vanderbilt University and its medical school.

To solve the long-term debt problems, the institution is considering seeking a waiver or deferral of payment of interest costs on long-term debts. Those costs amount to about two million dollars a year.

The financial troubles emerged as Meharry put the finishing touches on an $58.8 million, ten-year capital improvement program. The small campus in north Nashville has 16 new buildings, including a new School of Dentistry scheduled to be opened by next fall, and has nearly doubled its hospital capacity. The value of the facilities of the school and hospital have risen to $80 million, from approximately $12.5 million in 1968.

Meanwhile, the institution's annual operating budget has risen to $30 million for the current fiscal year, from $9.7 million 10 years ago. Last year, the school spent $45 million.

In its efforts to encourage young Blacks, the school has tried to keep its tuition as low as possible, and this has resulted in a shortfall in tuition income.
